QUESTIONS IF DELPHINE LOVE KILLED HERSELF

Coroner Finds Facts Tending to Show She Did Not Jump From Window.

COMPANION IN CUSTODY

Man Who Disappeared Returns With Bondsman and Surrenders.

COUPLE HAD QUARRELED

Girl Never Told the Police That She Had Tried to End Her Life.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Coroner George F. Shrady Jr. is not at all satisfied that Delphine Love, the daughter of Dr. I. N. Love, and formerly prominent in St. Louis society, killed herself. She was reported to have jumped from a third-story window of the Hotel Sterling, at Broadway and Fiftieth street. William H. McGucken, whose name was at first reported as McGovern, a broker living at the Hotel Balmoral, 60 Lenox avenue, was with the girl in the hotel.

McGucken, who disappeared after he called up Bellevue Hospital and learned Miss Love had died, turned up at the West Forty-seventh Street Station today with a bondsman and surrendered himself. He was escorted to the Coroner's office, where Dr. Shrady took him into his private office and put him through a lengthy inquisition.

Detectives had been waiting for McGucken all night at the Hotel Balmoral, at Lenox avenue and 114th street, which is owned by his father. The elder McGucken promised the police that he would produce his son this morning and he kept his word.

An autopsy, just performed at the Morgue, shows that Miss Love's back was broken by the fall from the hotel window.

McGucken, when brought before Coroner Shrady, made a long statement, at the conclusion of which he was held in $500 bail for further investigation.

Knew Her as Dorothy Hume.

McGucken in his statement to the Coroner said:

"I knew Miss Love as Dorothy Hume. She was the wife of W. Hector Hume and lived at 320 West Fifty-first street, with a Miss Barnott.

"Thursday afternoon, after spending some time with my cousin in the bar at the Waldorf-Astoria, I left my cousin and went to Mrs. Hume's flat. I wanted to take her out driving. We went to a stable, but couldn't get a horse. Then we went to the Sterling. I had seven whiskies and two absinthes there. I had been drinking for several days, and was in a highly nervous condition. We had supper and more drinks. Then I wanted to go home, but she begged me to stay and I did. I went to sleep.

"The next thing I knew was when I was awakened by a slap on the face by a policeman, who told me that the woman had thrown herself out of the window.

"I had known her for three years, and always by the name of Dorothy Hume. She never threatened to kill herself in my hearing, and I don't know of the slightest reason she had for suicide.

"How did she get the name of Love?" asked the Coroner.

Quarrel Was Long Before.

"I understand that the word 'Love' was the only word she said to the ambulance surgeon when she was taken to Bellevue," replied McGucken. "Love was her maiden name, however."

"How was it that no one knew her when inquiries were made for her at 320 West Fifty-first street?"

"Because they asked for Miss 'Love,' I suppose," said McGucken. "If they had asked for 'Mrs. Hume' they would have been told she lived there."

Asked about the reported quarrel between him and the woman, McGucken said:

"That quarrel happened hours before. I wanted to go home, and she wanted me to stay. That's what caused it."

Before McGucken turned up Coroner Shrady said:

"I have demanded that the police produce McGucken. From the investigation I have made it is not at all certain that Miss Love committed suicide. I learned that after she and McGucken, who was her fiance, had registered at the hotel they were served only four drinks.

Couple Had Quarrel.

"Then they had a quarrel and raised such a disturbance that they were warned they would have to keep quiet or leave. Some minutes later a scream was heard. Then Miss Love was found unconscious on the portico above the hotel entrance. She was carried back to the room and placed on the bed and I am told McGucken stood over her and grinned.

"I have established the fact that the window through which she is reported to have thrown herself was raised only about two feet and the curtains were

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, April 7.—Today's game was the sixth of the preseason series between the Ravens and the Cardinals. Manager McCloskey was visibly elated with the success of his new line-up in Friday's game, and he presented substantially the same team today. That the victory had also a revivifying effect on the dampened ardor of the Cardinals was shown by their fast preliminary practice, even old Jake Beckley being as chipper and sprightly as young De Groff.

O'Brien and Powell of the Ravens complained bitterly of colds, and Grady of the Cardinals was suffering from a lame back. Notwithstanding premonitory signs of rain in the cloudy sky and the prediction of showers by the weather man there was a fair Saturday crowd present when game was called.

VANDIVER HERE, AFTER BROKERS

The Missouri Insurance Department to Collect 150 Unpaid State License Fees.

APPEAL TO POLICE COURTS

Will Also Pass Upon Credentials of New Local Fire Insurance Company.

W. D. Vandiver, superintendent of the Missouri Insurance Department at Jefferson City came to St. Louis Saturday for the purpose of instituting action against 150 St. Louis insurance brokers, who, Mr. Vandiver said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, had failed to pay their state license fees.

"There are 350 insurance brokers in St. Louis," said Mr. Vandiver, "and under the law each is required to pay an annual license of $10.

"It became necessary for us recently to prosecute several of them for noncompliance with this law.

"Unless the delinquents pay up immediately I shall have them summoned before the police courts.

"Only a few days ago one of these brokers was fined $25 in police court, for not taking out a license.

"An insurance broker differs from an insurance agent in that he is neither employed by an insurance company or obtains a policy in his own interest.

"In fact he corresponds to the broker in other lines of business.

"We have had considerable trouble collecting these licenses from the St. Louis brokers and I think we are about ready to proceed against those who do not wish to live up to the spirit and letter of the law."

Mr. Vandiver said that while here he would pass on the credentials of a new fire insurance company to be started in St. Louis. The new company will be known as the St. Louis Fire Insurance Co., and is being organized with a capital of $100,000.

Edgar Davis, an insurance agent, is president. The directorate includes several prominent St. Louisans.

POLICE FORCE "ROTTEN," SAYS PRES. STEWART

Grand Jury to Hear Testimony on Which Three Were Dismissed.

WERE PAID $5 A WEEK

"Smith" Name Used in Women's Bookkeeping to Denote Them.

The testimony of Jane Rogers, former partner of Ollie Roberts, on which the Board of Police Commissioners dismissed from the force Patrolmen Richard Stender and Dennis O'Leary and Special Officer John P. Sullivan, is now in shorthand notes in Circuit Attorney Sager's possession and will be transcribed for the grand jury, with a view to bringing the three into court.

The period during which Jane Rogers said she had the three policemen on her payroll extended from July to November, 1904. Criminal prosecution in these cases, therefore, is not barred by the statute of limitations.

Stender, O'Leary and Sullivan were each voted guilty Friday of the charges against them—neglect of duty in failing to report to their superior officers the presence of certain women in the Central District, conduct unbecoming officers in accepting money from women thieves for protection and disobedience of orders in failing to carry out the injunction of Capt. Reynolds to keep Ollie Roberts out of the Central District.

Detective John J. Murphy and Special Officer Patrick J. Butler were dismissed from the force on charge of immorality. Patrolman John Lally of the Carr Street Station and Patrolman Philip McCoy of the North Market Street Station were both dismissed for intoxication. Policemen Harry Bergfeld and Louis G. Robers of the Newstead Avenue Station were both fined $50 for loafing. Patrolman Henry Amelung, charged with failing to patrol his beat, and Patrolman Frank Degnan, charged with conduct unbecoming an officer, were acquitted.

Police Force "Rotten."

At the close of the session, which lasted until midnight, President Stewart administered a scathing rebuke to the entire department.

"It begins to look to me," said he, "as if the entire police force of St. Louis is made up of graft. I don't mean that the members all take money, but without disrespect to officers who are worthy, I will say that the force needs reorganization from top to bottom. It is rotten."

Capt. Boyd, in whose district Amelung walked a beat, was cautioned by President Stewart to exercise better control over his men.

Jane Rogers startled the Police Board and spectators by her startling story of graft, robbery and police protection.

Forty women, under her supervision, stole industriously day and night for five months during the World's Fair season, she testified. Often as many as 40 men were robbed in her house in a day. Her gains averaged $900 a day, often reaching thousands. Half the booty went to the police for their services as her protectors.

The "little book," which chronicled the financial transactions between Ollie Roberts and most of the policemen who

MT. VESUVIUS' FIERY STREAM IN VILLAGE; INHABITANTS FLEE

Residents of Bosco Reale, on Slope of Volcano, Make Panic-Stricken Effort to Rescue Their Property From Relentless River of Molten Rock.

NEW CRATERS OPEN IN CONE OF DEATH

Flame Spouts From Mountain to Height of 1000 Feet and the Main Lava Stream, 200 Feet Wide, Travels 21 Feet a Minute Toward the Sea.

NAPLES, Italy, April 7.—Within the last few hours the eruptions from Mount Vesuvius have greatly increased in violence. The flow of lava is now extremely alarming and a panic has seized the inhabitants of the slopes.

Bosco Reale, a town of 6000 persons, on the southern slope of Mount Vesuvius, has been invaded by a stream of molten rock, issuing from one of the craters.

Another stream of lava is threatening Ottajano, a town of 5000 inhabitants, on the northeast slope of the volcano.

New craters are opening in the volcano and streams of lava are issuing from them. The main stream is 200 feet wide and is advancing at the rate of 21 feet per minute.

The population of the towns surrounding the volcano, including besides those named Bosco Reale and Torre dell' Annunziata, a city of 20,000 inhabitants, are panic stricken and making hasty preparations to leave the danger zone.

The entire vicinity of the volcano is in a panic, the people fearing that the present eruption, which seems to be growing in intensity, may again produce a calamity, as when it destroyed Herculaneum and Pompeii. Many homes have been abandoned for the open air, although there has been a thick fog all day, and the atmosphere has been dense with volcanic ashes and the fumes of subterranean fires.

Whole families, surrounded by their household goods, are waiting in the streets hoping to find a cart, horse or donkey to help them place their possessions beyond danger. Many heartrending scenes are witnessed. Artillery carts have been sent to help the fugitives.

Cardinal Joseph Prisco, Archbishop of Naples, has ordered special prayers to be offered for the safety of those who are in danger, and it is expected that he will go to the scene of desolation. Boscoe Reale, the village which is in most danger of destruction, is the birthplace of the Cardinal and the home of most of his relatives.

Churches Are Crowded.

The churches are crowded day and night with people praying for deliverance from an impending peril, manifestations of which are heard and felt in exposions which resemble a heavy cannonading, and in the tremblings of the earth which are constantly recurring.

The intense heat from the lava streams destroys vegetation before the stream reaches it.

The peasants of Porteici, at the west foot of Vesuvius, cleared their grounds of vineyards and trees in the effort to lessen the danger from fire and resisted the progress of the lava to the utmost.

Women of Bosco Reale, weeping with fright, carried a statue of St. Anne as near as they could go to the flowing lava, imploring a miracle to stay the advance of the coming stream.

The cemetery at Bosco Tre-Case has been invaded by lava.

The scene at night is one of mingled grandeur and horror, as from the summit of Vesuvius there leaps a column of fire fully a thousand feet in height, the glare lighting the sky and sea for many miles. Occasionally great masses of molten stone, some weighing as much as a ton, are ejected from the crater.

The village of Torre del Graco, with a population of 30,000, which has been eight times destroyed, and as often rebuilt with the lava rock that destroyed it, is again threatened, and the inhabitants are in extreme terror.

Meteorologists Hopeful.

Signor Matteucci, director of the observatory, is working indefatigably. He has had military engineers establish telephonic connection between the observatory and points within the volcanic activity.

The director said to the Associated Press this evening that the eruption presented grave menace.

Indeed, he said, the present volcanic activity was not altogether unmixed with good, for if it had not come to pass, a violent and sudden eruption having a far wider radius might have occurred.

Population of Cities Eruption Threatens.

The entire base of the treacherous volcano is clustered with small cities. The delightful climate and the blue Italian sky tempt men to the district in the periods of the volcano's quiescence, despite the flag of smoke which, issuing constantly from the mountain's summit, holds out a perpetual threat. Portici has a fine museum of art material taken from the buried city of Pompeii and Torre del Greco has been six times wiped away by lava streams and as often rebuilt. Following are the threatened towns and their population:

	Population.
Bosco Reale, on southern slope	6,000
Bosce Tre-Case, on southern slope	6,000
Ottajano, at northeast foot	5,500
Torro del Greco, at southwest foot	26,500
Portici, at northern foot	23,000
Torre Dell Annunxiata, at southern foot	35,000
Total	102,000

Husband Objected to Wife's Easter Expenditure.

Mrs. Maggie Brown of 2722 North Garrison avenue blames a quarrel over expenditures for Easter clothes for her children for the absence of her husband, Thomas W. Brown, who has been missing from home two weeks. She has asked the police to aid her in searching for him.

Brown was foreman at the United Railways shop at Vandeventer and Park avenues. He resigned when he drew his pay two weeks ago, and his wife has not seen him since. The quarrel which she thinks responsible for his disappearance occurred a short time before he disappeared. Mrs. Brown said Saturday that her husband's absence had placed her and her three children in serious financial straits. The children are Margaret, 9 years old; Joseph, 5, and Catherine, 2.

ZION OFFICERS SIGN PLEDGE TO OUST "PROPHET"

300 Church Officials Uphold Voliva in Fight Against Dowie.

TO HOLD MASS MEETING

Insurgents to Strip Him of Last Vestige of Authority.

WALL STREET "MIRACLE"

"Elijah" Communed With Goddess of Chance and Lost $960,000.

CHICAGO, April 7.—While John Alexander Dowie is traveling from Mexico to Zion City measures are being taken by the officers of the Zion Church to render him absolutely powerless before he can arrive among them. It is asserted that by the time he reaches Zion City the last vestige of his authority will have disappeared, except in so far as he may restore it through legal proceedings.

Three hundred officers of the church have signed a statement upholding General Overseer Voliva in his fight against the "First Apostle." Each member of the Zion City community will tomorrow be asked to swear allegiance to the present officers of the church and at the mass meeting, which is to be held in the afternoon, all of the people will be asked to put their signatures to a document renouncing their former leader.

In addition Overseer Voliva has declared that he will announce in detail the alleged misappropriation by Dowie of funds aggregating $2,529,000.

Dowie Makes Threats.

"The fallen wretches shall be stricken at my feet. Blood shall flow from their nostrils and I will restore them at will."

"The night shall be turned into day, and a flash from the roof of Shiloh tabernacle will announce that the Lord wishes me to assume command."

"Those I have healed shall return to their crippled state and beg for mercy. Blood-poisoned sinners I have cleansed shall writhe in agony and eat the dust."

"Let all beware, the angel of death will do my bidding. The First Apostle is angered."

In his new character of Moses II Dowie telegraphed these furious threats to Deacon Wilhite in Zion City. To a friendly elder he telegraphed: "I will perform a miracle upon my arrival and show the wretches the power of the Lord's anointed. A flash of wire will descend from heaven and illuminate the tabernacle. Then I will begin my work of driving the devil out of Zion."

The "insurgents" hear that the former leader has abandoned his pose as "Elijah the Restorer" and assumed that of "Moses II," determined on war. The make-up for this character in the way of spectacular robes has been ordered in New York and will be in Chicago when Dowie arrives. As "Moses II" he will enter Zion. Then the stage will be set for the "miracle." Even in Zion there are persons who doubt his power to work miracles.

Investigation shows that three years ago he attempted to work a "miracle" in Wall street that would have netted Zion millions of money. He prayed long and fervently and called upon the "prophets" to help him chastise the Wall street "devil." Despite this the devil in Wall street separated him from $960,000, of which $48,000 is still owing to a brokerage house. The "insurgents" have the records of the devil's victory.

Mrs. Jane Dowie issued a statement, which indicates that she is wavering between her duty as a wife and her duty to Zion.

"I believe Dr. Dowie is not responsible for his actions for two years," she said. "I will meet him and take care of him if he will allow me. While I believe that Overseer Voliva should have charge of Zion, it may happen that Dr. Dowie will recover and repent and again come into his own."

A letter written by Dowie in Jamaica is in possession of the insurgents, in which he says he has been appointed by all nations as arbitrator of international questions.

"I have settled the Morocco affair," he wrote, "and am now attending to the Venezuela and Russian and Japanese questions."

Selected Five Wives.

Five women in Zion had been picked out by Dowie for wives. Miss Ruth Hofer was to be No. 1. He lodged her in Deacon Ely's house and furnished her rooms at a cost of $4000. He called upon her in the room so often and so long that Mrs. Ely told him he was creating a scandal. They drank wine together, which he represented was unfermented. It was Italian Chianti.

This is the strain in which he addressed Miss Hofer:

"Priceless Pearl: We can best glorify God by extending His kingdom, building up His kingdom by establishing it in the hearts of women and by giving His kingdom a local name. You shall assist to that end. You will sing: 'Ruth said, entreat me not to leave Thee; whither Thou goest I will go; where Thou lodgest I will lodge.'

"Everything today is in darkness, disorder, despair, doubt and damnation. Women live in degradation, but you shall show them light. You shall rule over others and lead them to eternal happiness.

"Pray and meditate with me in your rooms today at 4. Would you could wear the colored robes I have chosen for you. I pray for you every hour and shall ever mediate for my priceless gem until the trumpet sounds.—J. A. D."

YOUNG FATHER MURDERED BY DRINK MANIAC

Unoffending Man Shot Down in Saloon by Former Convict.

SLAYER TRIES SUICIDE

ARTIST'S DEADLY PERIL

Dodges Deadly Fire Which Frenzied Man Began Without Warning.

Charles Stuckenberg of St. Louis, 26 years old, was shot to death in Alton by Christopher Davis, an ex-convict, 56 years old. Davis fired four shots in the handsomely appointed saloon of Fred Immenga, two of them striking Stuckenberg, who was tending bar. One penetrated his heart, killing him instantly. As he sank to the floor the fourth bullet entered his open mouth without touching his lips or grazing a tooth. Davis was crazed by drink. No other cause is known for the act.

The three other men in the place stood petrified with horror and surprise. Davis stepped outside and turned the weapon on himself. His hand trembled, and the shot passed through the rim of the stiff black hat he wore, smashing a window pane in the cigar shop adjoining the saloon.

The aspect of the crowd which instantly gathered about the saloon after the shooting Friday night was so menacing that Sheriff Crowe found it advisable to remove Davis from Alton and take him on a Terminal train to Edwardsville. On the way the prisoner begged Crowe to kill him.

No word was spoken during the fusillade of shots in the saloon. Stuckenberg and Immenga were standing behind the bar when Davis threw aside the swinging doors. Paul E. Harney, a St. Louis artist, was in front of the bar, in such a position that the two shots which hit Stuckenberg narrowly missed him.

Emil C. Haagen, an attorney, entered the place immediately behind Davis and saw him as he balanced unsteadily with the revolver leveled on Immenga.

Bystander Diverts Shot.

Just as Davis pulled the trigger Haagen struck his elbow upward. The bullet flew high, shattering the mirror above Immenga's head. While the weapon was still in air Davis fired again, the second shot following the first. Then the pistol was turned on Stuckenberg.

Mr. Harney, leaning against the bar almost on a line between Davis and Stuckenberg, had stood motionless while the first shots were fired. He leaped backward when the revolver was turned in his direction.

Stuckenberg lived until three weeks ago at 2523 North Grand avenue. His mother still lives at that address. A widow and baby survive the young man. The body will be brought to St. Louis for burial Monday. An inquest was begun in Alton Saturday.

Davis is a plasterer. Four years ago he shot Policeman Benjamin Allen twice in resisting arrest. The first shot struck Allen in the hand and the second glanced from a rib. Davis was sent to the Chester Penitentiary and served three years, when he was pardoned for good deportment.

SAYS MARRIED MAN MADE LOVE TO HER

Alton Girl Finds That She Is Engaged to Suitor Who Has One Wife.

Assistant State's Attorney Wilson of Alton is trying to figure out what charge may most effectively be brought against a married man of that place who is accused by Miss Matilda Marks, aged 19, of having represented himself to her as being unmarried and persuaded her to engage herself to him. He said Saturday that he thought it extremely likely that a warrant against the man would be issued.

Miss Marks told the Assistant State's Attorney that she had been engaged to the man for six months, and that he visited her on Wednesday and Saturday of each week. She says that the engagement was known to her friends, but that the date for the marriage was not set, as she had not felt ready to name the day. At first, she said, the man began visiting her regularly on Wednesdays, later he made regular visits on Sundays, and finally asked her to become his wife.

Last Monday, she says, a relative of the man to whom she was engaged told her that he was married and that his wife was then living in Alton. The wife's address was given, and Miss Marks says that she, in company with her mother, went to see the wife, taking with them a photograph of the man to whom Miss Marks was engaged.

The wife recognized the photograph as that of her husband, Miss Marks says, and became indignant, declaring that she would never permit him to come into the house again. Miss Marks exhibited this photograph to the Assistant State's Attorney, together with several love-letters which she says were written by the man, and said that she would offer them as evidence in the trial.

Miss Marks' father, Robert Marks, is a cousin of Col. D. P. Dyer, United States District Attorney in St. Louis. The man in the case is a fireman on the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis Railroad, and is 28 years old. He is said to be out of town at present.

JUNK MAN'S BEARD COST FIREMAN JOB

Member of Salvage Corps Dismissed on Aged Dealer's Complaint.

RUDE JERK AT WHISKERS

Invitation to Buy Old Iron Used to Decoy Would-Be Buyer.

William Riley, a member of the Salvage Corps, was dismissed Saturday by Chief J. O. Glanville, who investigated the charge that Riley pulled the beard of Isaac Gillerman, a junk dealer, in the basement of the downtown headquarters.

Chief Glanville said to a Post-Dispatch reporter Saturday that he was not convinced that other members of the corps were not concerned in the offense, and that his investigation was not finished.

Gillerman is an aged man with a long beard, and lives at 721 Biddle street. Chief Glanville learned that Friday Gillerman was invited by some member of the corps to enter the basement of the house on Locust street, near Eleventh. In the basement was stored a quantity of junk, for which a bid was wanted.

No sooner was Gillerman in the basement than the light was turned off. He was surrounded by shadowy figures, and his beard was given a jerk which caused the old man to cry out with pain. When the light was turned on, he said, Riley had hold of his beard.

"I do not think that any of my men intended to harm the man," said Chief Glanville. "They merely meant to have a little fun. The whole thing happened within five minutes, and the officer in charge was not aware of it at the time.

"But such things smack of hoodlumism, and I will not tolerate such actions. If Gillerman will identify any others implicated in the affair, I will dismiss them."

Riley is 26 years old and had been with the corps for three years. He admitted that he had "had a little fun" with Gillerman, but refused to name any other person connected with the affair.

DID MISS LOVE KILL HERSELF?

pulled down level with the window sash.

"That's rather against the supposition that the girl rushed to the window in a fit of hysteria and threw herself out. She was tall and stout, and would have had a hard time squeezing through the opening.

"McGucken was let go in the West Side court because a Roosevelt Hospital surgeon said the girl was only slightly bruised.

"I have directed Dr. O'Hanlon to perform an autopsy, and the circumstances surrounding the death of this beautiful and unfortunate young woman will be sifted to the bottom. The statement that she said she had tried to kill herself is incorrect. What she said to the policeman was that she hoped she would die.

"It is quite natural that a girl as refined and well reared as she was would rather die than live to face the exposure of her unhappiness."

No One Has Claimed Body.

Friends of Dr. Love, who was one of the best-known physicians and writers on medical subjects in the country, were deeply affected by the tragic death of his daughter. Miss Love came to New York when her father located here five years ago and was studying for the operatic stage.

After her father's sudden death aboard the Aurania, three years ago, as the ship was entering the harbor, she lost interest in the ambition she had cultivated in her. In time she dropped out of sight of her father's friends, as did her mother and her brother, Hodgen Love, who was associated with his father in a medical publication.

Diligent inquiry by the police and newspaper men has failed to show where Miss Love resided or whether her mother and brother are now living in this city. Though the story of her death was published in all the afternoon papers yesterday no one appeared at either Bellevue Hospital or the Morgue to make inquiry for her.

When friends of her father learned today that no inquiry for the girl's body has been made by her relatives. Coroner Shrady and the Morgue officials here were notified that if relatives did not appear to claim the body proper burial would be provided by friends of the girl's father.

Body Will Not Be Brought Here.

Neither Hodgen Love nor his mother has been in St. Louis since the World's Fair, and relatives here know nothing of their whereabouts except that they are believed to be living in New York. No information has been received here as to funeral arrangements. The body will not be brought here for burial.

"MICKEY MACK" VERY MUCH ALIVE

Burglar and Pickpocket Belied Dead Turns Up in New York.

WAS ST. LOUIS PRODUCT

Born in the "Patch" and Began His Career of Crime Here.

"Mickey Mack," burglar and pickpocket, whose supposed death three years ago has been celebrated by all police and detective departments throughout the country and mourned by all of his "pals" of the under-world, has unexpectedly appeared on earth again, and is under arrest in New York City on a charge of picking pockets.

"Mickey" has been fully identified by the police of St. Louis and New York, and, indeed, does not deny his identity. When asked where he has been for the past three years, he laughs at his questioners and answers: "Why, I've been dead."

"Mickey" is a St. Louis product, having begun his career of crime in this city about 15 years ago, starting out in the "bloody Third District." He was a terror to the police, and when news reached the city three years ago that he had been killed at Cambridge, Mass., in a train wreck, and fully identified by friends and by the police, no mourning was worn by the local "cops."

When The Detective, a Chicago publication devoted to the interest of the bureau of police identification throughout the country, arrived at police headquarters Saturday it contained pictures of the more important criminals arrested throughout the country within the past month. While Supt. John Shea of the local bureau was looking over the gallery of crooks a familiar face stared impudently back at him from the page. It was the picture of "Mickey." As "Mickey" was supposed to be dead, Supt. Shea called his assistant, Ed Brennan, and asked him who he thought the picture represented. Brennan said without hesitation that it was "Mickey Mack."

"Mickey's" picture was brought from the rogue's gallery and compared with the picture in the paper, which was labeled "Frank Moore, pickpocket," and they corresponded exactly.

The New York police were at once communicated with and answered that Frank Moore and "Mickey Mack" were the same person.

"Mickey," as Frank Moore, had been arrested with a gang of pickpockets in New York a few days ago.

The local police are puzzled to understand how he could escape arrest and identification so long, being as widely known to the police of the country as he is. But he did it, and is now back on earth to disturb again the dreams of the police, who fondly hoped that he was safely quartered, at least until Judgment Day.

"Mickey," whose real name is Michael McNamara, was born in the "patch" in St. Louis about 32 years ago.

He was a "pal" of "Skippy" Rohan and others of the same gang, and has served time in the Missouri Penitentiary for burglary, highway robbery and picking pockets.

KERENS WILL GO TO THE BANQUET

Has Accepted Invitation Despite Fact That Niedringhaus Will Stay Away.

Col. R. C. Kerens, who returned to St. Louis Saturday morning from an extended trip to the Pacific Coast, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he would certainly attend the banquet to be held in honor of Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw, under the auspices of the Missouri League of Republican Clubs, at the Jefferson Hotel, April 26, regardless of what Chairman Niedringhaus of the Republican State Committee or others might think about his presence there.

Mr. Niedringhaus has declined an invitation to the Shaw dinner, because invitations were sent to Col. Kerens and Ed Butler, the former Democratic chieftain.

"I have just gotten back," said Col. Kerens at his office in the Rialto Building, "and haven't had a chance to find out what's been going on here.

"About the Shaw dinner. O, well I won't discuss that now, except to say that I have accepted the invitation extended to me by the Missouri League of Republican Clubs. Am I still Republican? Well, I should say so, but that has nothing to do with this controversy.

"I shall reply to Mr. Niedringhaus' letter later. For the present just let me alone until I have thoroughly digested the situation."

Many Republicans besides Mr. Niedringhaus are worrying over the propriety of attending the Shaw banquet, which is advertised by Secretary Harris of the Missouri Republican Club as a purely "non-partisan affair."

Gen. John W. Noble, former Secretary of the Interior, takes the Niedringhaus view of the matter, and has sent his regrets, as step on which he says he determined as soon as he read the names of the "nonpartisan" reception committee.

Sim Harris, secretary of the State League of Republican Clubs and chief promoter of the banquet, has sent a telegram to Secretary Shaw, reassuring him and incidentally terming him "Iowa's most distinguished son." He has also announced that, in view of the objection to Kerens and Butler, he will take especial pains to see that both are present, sending an automobile for them if necessary.

"As well as Tom Kinney," he adds.

Cyrus P. Walbridge, toastmaster of the banquet; H. A. Forman, chairman of the reception committee; Nathan Frank, chairman of the Music Hall mass meeting which is to follow the dinner; George C. R. Wagoner and Louis P. Aloe met Friday afternoon and decided to proceed with the banquet arrangements. Charles Nagel, one of the arrangements chairmen, did not attend the meeting.

Most of the Missouri congressmen are expected to attend the banquet, which is to be held at Hotel Jefferson April 26.

IN JAIL WITH HUSBAND.

Children were the principal witnesses against M. Warsh, a Granite City tailor, when his preliminary hearing came before Magistrate Kinder Saturday. Warsh resides on Morgan street in St. Louis, with his wife and six children. Mrs. Warsh has engaged counsel to defend her husband and spent Friday in jail with him.

The charges against Warsh were preferred by Mrs. John Wood, mother of Paul Wood, aged 12 years. There are five other witnesses against him.

BARGAIN DAYS TO BOOM ST. LOUIS

Advertising Essential Feature of Plan Million Club Adopts.

INCREASE CITY'S TRADE

This, President Kingsland Holds, Is the Way to Aid Population.

To expend $100,000 a year for four years in newspaper and other advertising, after the general suggestion included in the winning method proposed by H. A. Lesan in the Post-Dispatch $500 prize competition, is the plan adopted by the Million Club.

A method of paying the cost of the advertising proposed by the Kastor Advertising Agency, through Ernst Kastor, has been approved by the executive committee of the club, and an attorney appointed to draw up a contract between the club and the agency. This will be signed at a special meeting.

L. D. Kingsland, president of the Million Club, said Saturday to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"We intend to carry out to the fullest extent the theory that an excellent retail market is the best advertisement a can have. The merchants of this city have agreed to the plan—one of general scope—for a monthly bargain day. The railroads have agreed to contribute to the success of this movement by the reduced rates of fare for monthly bargain days for the territory within 100 miles of St. Louis."

"We expect to advertise through commercial and business organizations, with a view to popularizing St. Louis with people in St. Louis territory and everywhere else. This will be not so much by printed matter or correspondence as by personal contact. Our effort is going to be in the direction of abolishing the 'knocker' and cultivating the 'booster.' Plainly and simply, we are purposing to have St. Louis talked about favorably."

To Bring Workers Here.

Mr. Kingsland was then asked in what way the Million Club expected, through this advertising campaign, to add population to the city.

"That is a more difficult proposition than advertising, but I believe we are on the right track. At least we are right about the effects of an advantageous retail market on the population. But we must have working people—certainly not an addition to the idle population.

"St. Louis is the second largest furniture manufacturing city in the country, and it has no furniture exchange for the attraction of jobbers. That is one way of increasing the jobbing trade of any line.

"If the jobbing trade of the city is increased, necessarily the manufacturing business of the city will be increased. You then have the basis of a demand for more people, which will result in the increase of population.

"It has been demonstrated to us that there are certain lines of manufacturing now being followed in St. Louis which would pay. Part of our work is to secure the investment in such lines which will naturally bring added population."

Mr. Kingsland said the Million Club would remember that it is not necessary to exaggerate or misrepresent in any particular, the only thing necessary being to present properly the advantages of St. Louis as a competitor.

"It is also the purpose," said Mr. Kingsland, "to make several changes in the organization of the Million Club, in order that the business of the organization may be followed with full effect and force and in a prompt manner. We will have executive, finance and auditing committees as a start, and others as the demand for them arises.

"We are not going to make any sort of a subscription soliciting campaign. We have now pledged a very large part of $200,000, the latter sum being in sight by the methods proposed."

ARTHUR MERMOD IS FINED $25

Member of Well-Known St. Louis Family Held in Police Court.

A fine of $25 and costs was imposed by Judge Tracy in the City Hall Police Court Saturday on Arthur Mermod, a member of a wealthy family of St. Louis, for unbecoming conduct on a public street, to the great annoyance of men, women and children at Eighth and Olive streets March 28.

The complainants in the case were Paul Viellard, 3829 South Jefferson avenue; Arthur Freyer, 1602 North Eighteenth street; Max Landau, 1107 Biddle street; A. Van Wormer, 3414 Magnolia avenue, and Patrolman Peters of the Central District.

Mermod is held in the detention room, pending word from relatives and friends as to the payment of the fine.

HUSBAND IS MISSING.

Mrs. Curry Would Like to Hear From Absent Spouse.

Mrs. James J. Curry of 4223 Easton avenue has appealed to Post-Dispatch readers to aid her in her search for her missing husband, who disappeared from home April 4, 1905, no word having been received from him in the year that has passed since he left.

Mr. Curry is described by his wife as 5 feet 6 inches tall, 40 years of age and having a dark complexion and blue eyes. When he left home Curry wore a heavy sandy mustache. He had on a dark blue suit and black fedora hat. He was born in Cincinnati, his former address at that place being 2856 Winslow avenue, Walnut Hill.

came within the sphere of her influence, was the subject of some of Jane Rogers' testimony.

Little Book Not Shown.

That small volume, which has occasioned death and dismissal among the men whose profits it is said to have recorded, was not shown by the testimony to have been delivered into the hands of the Police Board, but the impression left by the story of the quest made for it was that it may yet be produced.

Mr. Maroney led the witness by questions to the point of telling whether the book was ever discovered, and then turned the examination into other channels.

She said she inaugurated the rule of division which gave friendly policemen half of the fruits of robbery. In addition, her liberality provided a weekly salary of $5 for those who merited it.

She testified that the accused policemen knew of her methods.

Her acquaintance with O'Leary she said, began five years ago. Sullivan, she said, she had known for six years, and Stender about half that time.

"Did you ever see Sullivan in Ollie Roberts' house?"

"Yes."

"Did you know of the order against her living in the district?"

"Yes."

"Did the police know of it?"

"Yes, but nobody made much of it."

Paid $5 a Week.

"Were you at Ollie Roberts' house when Sergt. Nolte made the raid the day the holler came while he was taking Sergt. Colestock's place on the precinct?"

"I knew of it, but I got away before he came."

"A girl was left to stand the raid, wasn't she?"

"Yes."

Here Judge Krum interrupted the examination to object to the form of the questions.

"I suggest," he said, "that the witness have the privilege of testifying herself, and that the words be not put in her mouth."

"How many touches would occur in a day at Ollie Roberts' house?"

"Sometimes as many as 10 or 20."

"Did you pay O'Leary money when he walked the beat on which your house at 1916 Pine street was situated?"

"Yes, I paid him $5 a week."

"Why did you pay him?"

"To keep him from arresting my girls."

"How many girls had you working for you?"

"Thirty or 40, hardly ever less than 30."

"How much did they steal?"

Took in $000 a Day.

"Sometimes $1000 a day."

Judge Krum asked in what year these thefts were committed.

"World's Fair year," volunteered Mr. Maroney.

"Everybody had money then," said Judge Krum.

"How much did your girls steal on an average?"

"About $800 or $900 a day, I should say."

"How long did you operate at 1916 Pine street?"

"From July until November," (referring to 1904.)

"Why did you stop then?"

"The seargeants were changed, and Hoffman and Houlihan took the places of Colestock and Connors."

"Was John P. Sullivan ever in your house?"

"Yes."

"Did you pay him any money?"

"Yes, I gave him $5 a week."

"Did you pay Stender?"

"I am not positive, but I think I paid him $5 a week, also."

"For what other reasons did you pay the policemen money?"

"For stalling suckers."

"If they didn't stall the sucker they weren't paid, were they?"

"No."

Police Laugh at Crime.

Witness then told how she and the policemen who walked beats in the neighborhood were used to joke and laugh at the fury of men robbed. She said that arrests were generally made after conferences with the police, and that her girls took their turns at being "pinched." In case of a "holler" or complaint by the man robbed, there was an arrest to satisfy the formalities, but the girl taken into custody was never the one who got the money.

One "touch" of $250, of which she said, $125 went to Sergt. Connors, was made the subject of her testimony.

"Some of that money was 'thrown back' or returned, wasn't it?"

"Yes, I gave the man $15 to pay his fare to Chicago. He wanted to get away, and I wanted to get rid of him."

"Was there any arrest because of this theft of $250?"

"No."

"Did someone advise the return of the money?"

"Sergt. Connors did, I think."

Furniture Shifted.

She then described the manner in which she and Ollie Roberts had changed the position of articles of furniture, taken numbers from transoms and otherwise tried to disguise the appearance of their houses after a "touch," so that the man robbed would be confused and unable to identify the place.

"When there was a particularly strong complaint, what would the officers do?"

"Tell us to give back the money."

"Did you ever give Stender any money when you were at 2030 Chestnut street?"

"Yes. But I don't recall how much."

"What did you pay him for?"

"Stalling suckers."

The discovery that the three accused policemen and others would take money in payment for affording certain privileges and immunities, was made the witness said, by "trying it on them."

She made it a rule, she said, to give the friendly policemen $5 a week and half of the money realized by a touch. That division of the spoils was an innovation—a departure from the old practice of leaving the amount of the "bit" to bargains in each case. Maggie Geekie, with whom she formerly lived, was more parsimonious, she said, and thought 10 per cent an extravagant reward.

Police Are "All Wrong."

Judge Krum began his cross-examination by asking the witness regarding her present occupation in Kansas City.

"Are men robbed in your house in Kansas City?"

"No, sir."

"Why not?"

"The police there are not right, they are all wrong." (Laughter.)

"How did you come to be here?"

"Mr. Maroney sent for me."

"Weren't you here once to confer with Mr. Maroney in the Laclede Hotel?"

"Yes, I was there for one or two days."

"Did anyone see you besides Mr. Maroney?"

"Yes, I went out."

"Was Ollie Roberts there, too?"

"Yes."

"Did she go out?"

"She could have gone out, I suppose."

"Did she go out on horseback?"

"Smith" Got One-Half.

Here Mr. Maroney took the witness again and had her relate that she had first seen him in Kansas City, where he went in search of Ollie Roberts' little book.

The book was supposed to have been hidden in Ollie Roberts' trunk when she was convicted and sentenced to the Penitentiary for killing John Kelly. Jane Rogers took charge of the trunk, and when Mr. Maroney learned this he went to Kansas City in the hope of obtaining the book.

When Jane Rogers could throw no light on its whereabouts she went with Mr. Maroney to Jefferson City to see Ollie Roberts. While in the Penitentiary a souvenir book of the Police Department was shown to her, that she might identify the pictures of the patrolmen and sergeants whom she had paid for protection. She recognized Sullivan, Stender and O'Leary.

Jane Rogers testified that she had seen the book at Ollie Roberts' house, and was familiar with some of the entries.

"Did you know with whom she kept accounts in that book?"

"Yes, with the women in her house."

"With anyone else?"

"I saw the name Smith."

"What proportion of a touch recorded in that book was credited to Smith?"

"Half the money."

"Wasn't it understood that, under the name of Smith, was kept a record of the money paid to the police?"

"Yes."

Vote for Your Favorite School

DATE APRIL 7, 1906.

THE POST-DISPATCH PUBLIC SCHOOL CONTEST

ONE

One Ballot

For.............................School

ONLY 8 DAYS UNTIL THE CLOSE OF THE ELECTION. SEND IN YOUR BALLOTS AS OFTEN AS YOU CAN; DO NOT HOLD THEM BACK OR AT THE END THE TELLERS WILL BE SWAMPED.

Do not fold or roll your ballots. Make flat packages of them and keep the single-vote ballots separate from the five-vote ballots. Put 100 in each package. If you follow these instructions you will facilitate the count. When ballots have been rolled the tellers are greatly handicapped. One can count flat ballots three times faster than rolled ballots. The ballot printed in the Sunday Post-Dispatch is worth FIVE votes.

ONLY EIGHT MORE DAYS IN PUBLIC SCHOOL ELECTION

Announcement of School Standing Will Be Made in the Easter Sunday Post-Dispatch Tomorrow—An Answer to Several Requests.

One week from tomorrow the Public School election to decide where the Post-Dispatch gifts of statuary shall be placed will end. The result will be announced as soon thereafter as the tellers can finish the count of ballots.

Tomorrow the standing of the schools in the several classes will be printed in the Easter Sunday Post-Dispatch. The number of ballots cast during the past week nearly doubles the number cast in the preceding week and changes in relative standing of schools may be expected.

The tellers have grown very expert and in spite of the great influx of votes are keeping well up with them. While the statement to be printed tomorrow will not be based on the total number of votes cast at that time, it will be approximately correct. All the ballots will not be counted when the statement is made up. Subsequent statements of school standing will be made during the week as the count proceeds.

Do not hold back your ballots, but send them in as fast as collected.

In reply to several requests for the transfer of votes already cast from one school to another, the Post-Dispatch wishes it clearly understood that no requests of this sort can be granted. Aside from the manifest injustice such action would work other contestants in that class, there is this reason that the ballots received are in the possession of the corps of tellers, who are pledged to honestly count and return the vote as they find it without favoritism of any sort.

DID SHE USE PEROXIDE OR EGGS ON HAIR?

This Interesting Question Raised in Schietlin Divorce Trial.

SHE SAYS SHE USED EGGS

Attorney and Judge Ryan Are Not Satisfied With Her Explanation.

HUSBAND BOUGHT SHOES

She Says He Was Jealous and Was Also Derelict in Paying Wages.

Did Mrs. Ida Scheitlin use peroxide or eggs on her hair? That is the burning question in the divorce suit of Mrs. Scheitlin, who lives at 4587 North Market street, against Charles Scheitlin of 3812 Flad avenue, on trial in Judge Ryan's court.

Mrs. Scheitlin says it was eggs. Two of her witnesses have said it was eggs. Mr. Scheitlin's attorney has insinuated that it was peroxide and is expected to offer testimony to that effect. Judge Ryan is taking keen interest in the question. It may yet be necessary to summon experts on peroxide and eggs to settle the question.

Mrs. Scheitlin's hair was pulled into the case during her cross-examination by her husband's attorney, Benjamin Schnurmacher.

"Is it not a fact, Mrs. Scheitlin," he said, "that your husband objected to your blondining your hair and that this was the cause of quarrels between you?".

"He never did," answered Mrs. Scheitlin, with a touch of asperity. "I have never blondined my hair. It has always been light."

"Do you mean to say that you have never used anything on it to change the shade of it?"

"I have always used eggs on it, egg shampoo, you know, but never anything else."

Never Used Peroxide.

"And you have never used peroxide on it?"

"I never have."

Judge Ryan took a hand then. "Do you mean to say, madam," he said, "that your hair has always been the shade it is now?"

"Always."

"I may be mistaken, but it certainly looks like it has been bleached. I notice that your eyebrows are dark. Has your hair always been light and your eyebrows dark?"

"I sometimes pencil my eyebrows."

"Are they penciled now?"

"I don't know. I penciled them this morning."

To satisfy herself Mrs. Scheitlin raised her veil and rubbed her finger tips over her eyebrows and then looked at her finger tips, but did not announce the result.

Attorney Schnurmacher asked if the color of her hair was the same at the roots at the back of her neck as on other parts of her head, stroking his own short crop upward from his neck to make it plain.

Mrs. Scheitlin smiled faintly and said she was not able to see the back of her own neck.

Louise Kretschmar of 2408 Coleman street, a servant for a year in the Scheitlin household, told both Judge Ryan and Mr. Schnurmacher that Mrs. Scheitlin had never blondined her hair while she was there.

The Woman in Blue.

Mrs. Spinks, a friend of Mrs. Scheitlin, was asked about the plaintiff's hair. She said it was a shade lighter, if anything, when she was 16 years old, than it is now.

"Were her eyebrows always the same?" asked Judge Ryan.

"Always the same," said Mrs. Spinks. "But she says she pencils them."

"I have never seen her do so."

Next to the color of Mrs. Scheitlin's hair, the color of the dress of one of her witnesses was the subject of the most comment. She was alluded to as the woman in blue, and both Mr. Schnurmacher and Judge Ryan manifested lively curiosity concerning her.

The woman in blue was Miss Mamie Hendricks of 1834 O'Fallon street. She sat with Mrs. Scheitlin beside her attorney, Jephtha Howe, and when Mrs. Scheitlin went on the stand she coached the attorney.

Mr. Schnurmacher wanted to know. "Who is the woman in blue who is coaching your attorney?" he asked.

Mr. Howe protested that the identity of the woman in blue was not of consequence, but Judge Ryan said: "I have been wondering myself and I would like to know, too."

"She is Miss Hendricks, a friend," said Mrs. Scheitlin, and Mr. Howe added that she had been subpenaed as a witness.

"What does she do?"

"She is a demonstrator of perfumes."

"Is she a detective?" asked Mr. Howe.

Mrs. Scheitlin said she was not, but that she had assisted in the preparation of the case.

Husband Bought Her Shoes.

Mr. Schnurmacher alluded later again to the woman in blue as having coached Mr. Howe, but Mr. Howe denied it and Mr. Schnurmacher apologized.

Mrs. Scheitlin told the Judge that during all the time she and Mr. Scheitlin lived together, from 1890 to 1904, her husband bought all her shoes for her except on one occasion.

She said the reason was that her husband did not want her to have her shoes fitted on at a shoe store. Shortly after their marriage she went downtown, she said, and bought a pair of slippers for herself and a pair for her husband. He became very angry, she said, and commanded her never to go to a shoe store again and have shoes fitted on.

"After that," she said, "I never bought a pair of shoes for myself. My husband always bought them for me."

She testified that he also always bought all her underclothing.

Mrs. Scheitlin related many instances of ill-treatment at the hands of her husband. Once she said he threw her out of the bedroom and for three weeks she slept on the floor in the hall.

Worked for Small Pay.

She told of going to a ball and finding Mr. Scheitlin there with a girl. She stayed there until 3 a. m., she said, and then went home with him, but he cursed her part of the way and they walked on opposite sides of the street the rest of the way.

For eight months, she testified, she was the hired servant of her husband.

"When the servant left," she said, "I suggested that I would do the work that the servant had been doing if he would pay me what he had been paying her. He said all right and I did the servant's work. At the end of the first month he gave me only $5. I waited a few days and then asked him if that was all he was going to pay me. He then gave me $7. I did the work for eight months, but he never paid me the $20 a month he promised to pay me."

Mrs. Scheitlin said that once when she and her husband were apart he sent Attorney Mulvihill to her with a paper to sign. The paper was an agreement not to visit her mother or brother, but she would not sign it.

Louise Kretschmar testified that Mr. Scheitlin always called his wife "Old Woman," that the children were "scared to death of him."

Mrs. Spinks told of being in a restaurant which Mr. Scheitlin conducted at the World's Fair and seeing two girls come in, one of whom leaned over a table and kissed him while the other contented herself with saying "Hello, sweetheart."

One of the girls, she said, was a ballyhoo girl at Paris on the Pike.

The principal charge in Mr. Scheitlin's crossbill is intoxication. He says his wife drank even after taking a pledge. Mrs. Scheitlin admitted drinking beer, but denied ever having been intoxicated. She said she began drinking at the invitation of Mr. Scheitlin during the six years that they were sweethearts. Both parents want the custody of Gladys, the 8-year-old child. Mrs. Scheitlin says her husband makes $175 a month and has property worth $15,000.

The ethics of beer drinking has come in for a little consideration. When Attorney Howe sought to show that beer drinking was not uncommon among people with whom Mr. and Mrs. Scheitlin associated, Judge Ryan said if Mrs. Scheitlin drank beer to excess she would be open to criticism, but if she only drank it occasionally her husband would have no right to complain. Mrs. Scheitlin denied that she had ever drank bock beer.

HADLEY UNABLE TO QUIT HIS BED

His Physician Expects Attorney-General to Be Up Within a Week.

CAUGHT COLD ON TRAIN

Lay Down in Sleeping Car That Was Not Warm as One He Left.

Dr. W. A. Clark, who is attending Attorney-General Hadley, told a Post-Dispatch reporter in Jefferson City today that he expected the Attorney-General would be well enough to be up within a week. He has been slowly improving for the past week.

Attorney-General Hadley's sickness is the direct result, his physicians say, of lying down in an overheated car on his return two weeks ago from New York, where he had conducted an oil hearing. As his train reached St. Louis about 10 p. m., General Hadley, though tired, did not wish to go to bed in the sleeping car. Instead he lay down in the smoking room of the Pullman.

When the train reached St. Louis he arose and entered another Pullman for Jefferson City. There was a decided difference in the temperatures of the two cars and he took a severe cold.

The following afternoon he was compelled to go to his home from his office. He was suffering from a severe attack of pleurisy and biliousness, the latter resulting from a disordered stomach. The biliousness continued only a few days, but he has been slower in recovering from the pleurisy.

For the past two weeks he has had a continuous fever, varying from 100 to 102, though for the past week his general condition has shown a gradual though slow improvement.

Dr. Clark has given instructions that he shall not receive visitors. Consequently he sees only Mrs. Hadley and his assistants at his office. His physician says that Mr. Hadley talks much more than is good for him when he has visitors and for that reason the orders were given.

Dr. Clark says it is impossible to tell just when his patient will be well, but if he maintains his present improvement he will probably be out within a week.

LIBERTY LASTS AN HOUR.

For an hour Anton Schmidt, a prisoner in the Clayton chain gang, was a free man, but he is now back in his old place in the ranks, with the added discomfort of being heavily shackled. Schmidt made a dash for liberty, and as Overseer Chris Zircher could not leave his other prisoners to give immediate pursuit, Schmidt got away. The Sheriff was notified and Schmidt was captured within an hour by Deputy Bellairs.

Schmidt was sentenced last January to serve six months for disturbing the peace.

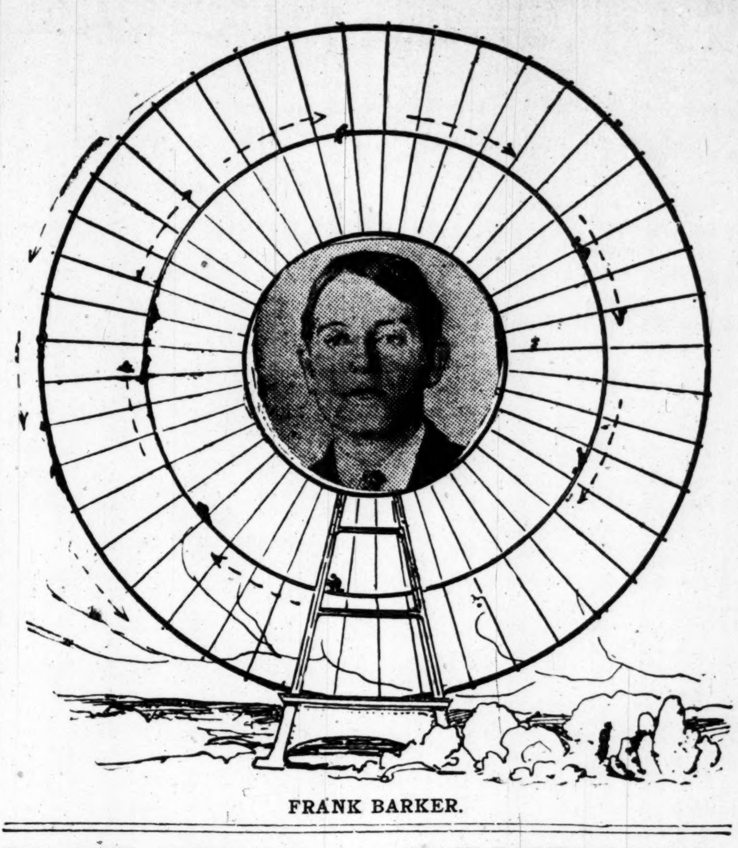
HOW INTREPID MAN MADE TRIP AROUND THE OLD FERRIS WHEEL



FRANK BARKER.

CLIMBED ON RIM OF FERRIS WHEEL

Frank Barker Made Dangerous Trip Around the Big Revolver.

HAD BUT SLIGHT FOOTING

To Reach Him He Had to Walk Brace Only Three Inches Wide.

Frank Barker made a trip around the Ferris Wheel on the World's Fair grounds Friday afternoon, despite the fact that the big revolver has been dismantled for many months, and has been bereft of all propelling machinery.

It was probably the most perilous trip ever made by anyone on the big wheel. It was done without the consent of the management, and the trip was made in a manner entirely different from that contemplated when the mighty wheel was designed.

Barker climbed one of the gigantic supports until he was more than 100 feet in the air, and stepped onto the axle. From there he started to the rim of the wheel. This journey was made on a slender steel brace, three inches wide. He had to walk half the diameter of the wheel on this tiny footing, with never a thing to hold to besides. On the edge of the wheel from where the cogs had been taken, he found a rim more than a foot wide, with steel cleats somewhat similar to a ladder, and he clambered up to the summit. He stood and looked around for a few minutes, and then clambered down.

Barker is 20 years old, is employed at a brass foundry at 2028 Walnut street, and lives at 3660 Park avenue.

"I was here when they were putting up the Ferris Wheel," said Barker to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "but went back to Cincinnati before it was complete. I always had a desire to see what could be seen from its top. Yesterday I determined to make the ascent. The wheel was chained so it could not revolve in the wind, and I slipped by and got well on my way before the watchman discovered me.

"The only time I was really frightened was when I was on the slender support leading from the center of the wheel to the rim. Here there was nothing to hold to and the footing was precarious. Once on the rim it was like climbing on a big ladder, and just as safe.

"Watchman Johnson, who saw me, said I was the only person he ever knew of making the circuit of the wheel in the manner I adopted yesterday."

TO GET FUND TO PROBE RAILROAD

Call for Special Session Will Help Investigation of Illinois Central.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 7.—The special session of the Legislature for which Gov. Deneen issued a call Thursday, immediately after the Supreme Court knocked out the Illinois primary law, will have a material bearing on the investigation which the Governor is conducting into the business of the Illinois Central Railroad with a view to compelling it to pay to the State a larger percentage of its gross receipts as taxes.

Several months ago Frank D. Whipp, State Audit Clerk, acting under the directions of Gov. Deneen, began the investigation of the railroad. Under the charter granted to the Illinois Central a tax on its gross receipts is provided for. For 40 years the railroad has maintained that under its charter 7 per cent of its gross receipts was the maximum tax that could be collected by the State. Attorney-General Stead has ruled differently, however, holding that 7 per cent of the gross receipts was the minimum tax instead of the maximum, and on this decision the executive is conducting his investigation.

Will Owe $50,000,000 Taxes.

If Attorney-General Stead's opinion will stand, the Illinois Central road owes to the State something like $50,000,000 in back taxes, which the State will endeavor to collect, and if successful the Illinois Central will be reduced from a 7 per cent dividend paying road to the level of a majority of the Illinois roads, which pay about 4 per cent.

The cost of the investigation up to this time has been defrayed out of the emergency appropriation at the disposal of the Governor. The fund has been depleted and the investigation is far from finished.

In his call for a special session Gov. Deneen specified new primary legislation, and "an additional appropriation to meet expenses of the State government, heretofore unforeseen and not provided for."

No mention is made anywhere of the manner in which the additional appropriation is to be used, but its purpose is generally understood.

While nothing relating to the investigation has been made public officially, it is known that the State Audit Clerk has discovered many things not in keeping with the amounts that have been paid to the State in taxes. The final report to the Governor will, it is believed, furnish a big sensation when made public. It is alleged that the 7 per cent which has been paid has not been figured on the railroad's gross business on its original lines. For instance, it is claimed that the vast suburban business in Chicago, amounting to millions of dollars annually, has not been included in computing the 7 per cent on the gross receipts. Likewise, advertising features and business done by coal mines said to be owned by the road along its original lines have not been included.

CHOSE POTTER'S FIELD.

Woman Asked to Be Buried Near Poor Farm.

In pursuance of a deathbed request, Mrs. Judith Scharrer, aged 70, for many years a resident of Edwardsville, was buried in the potters' field adjoining the County Farm. She had been an inmate of the Madison County Poor Farm for three years.

Mrs. Scharrer's daughter, Mrs. Louisa Lattrice, resides in St. Louis, and the dying request was made of her. Mrs. Scharrer would not be dissuaded from the idea that at her death she wanted her body to rest on the western slope of the farm hill. She explained that during her stay in the institution her life had been exceptionally quiet and pleasant and that she had made many friends among the inmates. She named the exact spot where she wanted to be buried. Rev. E. Safford of the Presbyterian Church performed the services.

SUFFERED AGONIES FOR FOUR YEARS

Whole Foot Nothing But Proud Flesh—Tried Different Physicians and All Kinds of Ointments—Could Walk Only With Crutches—Ohio Man Says:

"CUTICURA REMEDIES THE BEST ON EARTH"

"In the year 1899 the side of my right foot was cut off from the little toe down to the heel, and the physician who had charge of me was trying to sew up the side of my foot, but with no success. When he found out that wouldn't work, he began trying to heal the wound with all kinds of ointment, until at last my whole foot and way up above my calf was nothing but proud flesh. I suffered untold agonies for four years, and tried different physicians and all kinds of ointments. I could walk only with crutches. It is sixteen months ago since I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment for my limb and foot. The first two months the Cuticura Remedies did not seem to work, but I kept on using them both. In two weeks afterwards I saw a change in my limb. Then I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment often during the day and kept it up for seven months, when my limb was healed up just the same as if I never had trouble.

"It is eight months now since I stopped using Cuticura Remedies, the best on God's earth. I am working at the present day, after five years of suffering. The cost of Cuticura Ointment and Soap was only $6; but the doctors' bills were more like $600. You can publish my name and refer any one to write to me about Cuticura Remedies. I will answer all letters if postage is enclosed. John M. Lloyd, 718 S. Arch Ave., Alliance, Ohio, June 27, 1905."

REDUCING TIME SCHEDULES.

The suggestion, based on the experience of Mr. E. F. Goltra, that the time between St. Louis and New York be reduced to 22 hours is an excellent one. When Mr. Goltra is in a hurry to go to New York, he goes to Fort Wayne and catches the 18-hour limited from Chicago, and reaches New York in 23 hours. A few minutes change in the schedule to Pittsburg would put St. Louisans on this fast train and reduce the schedule to 22 hours.

Time is money. Many business men who want to economize on time will gladly pay an excess to save several hours. The saving of four hours between St. Louis and New York would be a great gain. It would cause more travel between St. Louis and New York and would bring travel by way of St. Louis which would otherwise go to Chicago.

Assistant General Passenger Agent Millspaugh of the Vandalia, the Pennsylvania connection at this end, admits that the Pennsylvania lines could reduce the running time, but says it is a question whether such a train would be used, because it would mean an excess fare such as Chicago pays on the fast limited from that city.

As a general rule it may be said that improved facilities increase travel. It is almost impossible to tell whether such a train would pay until it is tried. In very few cases has a trial been made between large cities, running through many other large cities, as between St. Louis and New York, that the trial has proved a failure. The schedule should be reduced as much as safety will permit.

Another striking color page will be "Easter Morning in Fashionable St. Louis," by Marguerite Martyn. Two full sections, highly illustrated, will make the Sunday Magazine the most artistic production of the kind ever issued in St. Louis.

RIGHTS OF THE CHILD.

When a 12-year-old child goes on the stand and testifies to her mother's misconduct philosophers who have abstract views on marriage and divorce should sit up and take notice.

Abstract philosophers do not like concrete facts but they cannot elude or evade them. The case is not singular. Many children have been eye-witnesses to such transactions who are never called upon to make oath in divorce trials. What do the philosophers think about the chances in life of a child who has seen and heard what this poor child was made to see and hear?

However we may differ about the rightness and expediency of divorce from the standpoint of the parents' interest, there ought to be no difference of opinion concerning the rights of the child. But how shall they be vindicated and preserved? The philosophers who talk learnedly about marriage and divorce shirk this plain pressing question.

DO WE BRISTLE OR DO WE NOT?

In the course of his inspection tour, Mr. Henry James spent a few days in Philadelphia. His report is published in the current North American.

"Philadelphia," he says, "incontestibly then, was the American city of the large type that didn't bristle—just as I was afterwards to recognize in St. Louis the nearest approach to companionship with it in this respect; and to recognize in Chicago, I may parenthetically add, the most complete divergence."

This isn't very clear. We should like to know what he means by saying that St. Louis approaches companionship with Philadelphia in the matter of bristles and bristling.

Does he mean to belittle the packing interest of St. Louis, hinting that it is insignificant, like that of Philadelphia? The reference to Armour and Swift's home as presenting a complete divergence from St. Louis and Philadelphia suggests that he was unduly impressed by the sight of the rapid conversion of pig to pork in 40 seconds.

Bristles are an important by-product and we don't pretend to equal Chicago in that respect, but our industry is not contemptible.

Whatever may be the truth about Philadelphia, St. Louis is well satisfied with himself. The old Crusader is an active business man and cares not a rap what a mere literary man says about him. And his equanimity is the greater becauses nobody on earth can say what H. James means. His later work is Sordello turned into prose and not clarified by the translation.

The fact that State Chairman Niedringhaus has refused to attend the Shaw banquet because he objects to the political records of two of the invited guests—Col. "Ed." Butler and Col. "Dick" Kerens—indicates that progress is making in political standards. But Mr. Niedringhaus should not stop drawing the line at Col. "Ed." and Col. "Dick." He need not go outside of his own party organization in St. Louis for men whose records are unsavory messes to set before men of sensitive moral feelings.

DOLLIVER AND THE SENATE.

In declining to give the Senate the names of Senators who he had said were consulting with railroad presidents on the rate bill, Senator Dolliver raised a question of far greater importance by adding that "the railroads have spent $2,000,000 in their efforts to antagonize this legislation."

If so, when did they spend it and to whom did they pay it? Was it paid to Senators, members of the House of Representatives, holders of executive or judicial places under the Federal Government?

Strangely enough, no demand was made on Senator Dolliver by other Senators for an instant and full disclosure of all facts on which he based this charge.

He must have such facts in his possession and be ready to give them in full to show that he is not capable of making an unfounded accusation of this kind.

Made in connection with a prior charge that members of the Senate had been consulting with railroad presidents, it seems to involve everything the Senate is accustomed to consider its "highest privilege."

What will the Senate do about it?

DOWIE AND THE HIGHER LAW.

With reference to marriage at least, John Alexander Dowie stands pat on the higher law proclaimed at Albany, N. Y., by the more or less honorable Andy Hamilton.

Hamilton, it will be remembered, declared that great men were not governed by laws binding ordinary men and ought not to be, and as McCall, Alexander, McCurdy Andy and the rest were great men the public should not inquire too curiously how they got it and what they did with it.

According to his wife, John Alexander says that since the prophets of old were not restricted to one wife the same liberty should be enjoyed by modern prophets. The privileges of prophetic men cannot die—or expire by limitation of time. If Elijah was entitled to a plurality of wives in the days of Jezebel why isn't he entitled to a plurality in the days of Mary Walker and the Empress Dowager An?

The logic is convincing and invincible. Great men and prophets may do as they like. Law is all well enough for common men. Andy and John Alex rise superior to such vulgar restraints.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

HOURS OF WORKING WOMEN.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

May I add a few words to J. F. Smith's plea for shorter hours for working women in behalf of laundresses and scrubwomen. The majority of these women are the support of their families. They work 10 hours per day and are expected to accomplish as much work as should take 12 or 13 hours if they had proper regard for their health and their children's mental, moral and spiritual development.

When they are through with a day's work they are physically exhausted and in such a state of nervous excitement, which is almost prostration, and are either irritable, almost cruel, or so very lenient in dealing with their little ones, which is demoralizing to mother and children.

In other large cities women employed in these occupations work eight hours. Could any of the readers advise me how to begin a movement with this end in view? Do you think it possible to begin with the employers, who are nearly all women and mothers?

Servant girls put in from 14 to 18 hours per day and seldom have an hour for themselves, except Thursday afternoon and sometimes Sunday. Who can wonder that girls prefer to work in offices and factories at lower wages? E. T. A.

DAY DAWN.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Your editorial headed "Coal andOil," commenting on the Kansas City Star's protest against the turning over to the railroads the coal lands in the Indian Territory, is the thin edge of the wedge that, when driven home, will rend asunder all monopoly. When the people once wake up to the simple truth that the earth, with all it contains, is the free gift of nature to all men, and that those who want to monopolize any part of it must return to the rightful owners—the people collectively—the full equivalent of such monopoly, then and then only will begin the dawn of a better day. G. H. M.

"WHAT ABOUT THE CHILDREN?"

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is a strange coincidence that in the same hour in which the City Council was permitting a bill recently passed by the House of Delegates to be lost by default, a Bellefontaine car at Twentieth and Ferry streets was grinding out the life of a little 5-year-old girl in just the manner for which the bill was to provide a remedy. This is the second time in the last few months that the Council has defeated a similar measure, and I am informed on reliable authority that one of our street railway managers threw all the weight of his influence and position into the balance with the Council to bring about the defeat. The manager, and the good Christian stockholders in the street railway companies, can have no pleasure to hear in their dreams the craunch of the tender bones, and to see the spurt of the life blood of these innocent human victims, who could be saved at very little expense to the companies. The blood may be washed from the tracks, and from the wheels of their death engines, but what about their souls? As for the Council, the blood of this silent child is rebuke and warning more severe and eloquent than words. OBSERVER.

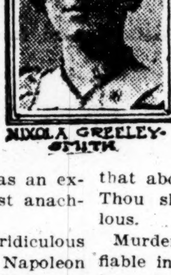
UNWRITTEN LAWS OBSOLETE

"Life Is Too Far From the Melodrama for Their Survival."

Written for the Post-Dispatch

By Nixola Greeley-Smith.

"My first duty is to my own name and the future of my boy David. Even to save his father, I could not say I was guilty of dishonor and blight my baby's life.—Mrs. Emma Shelton Chalmers.



NIXOLA GREELEY-SMITH

SUCH is the philosophy of a woman of Memphis, Tenn., whose husband recently shot a man of whom he was jealous, and relies on the "unwritten law" and his wife's testimony to save him from the gallows.

The situation seems more like the third act of a melodrama than an actual occurrence. Life is getting so far from melodrama these days that the survival of the various unwritten laws that have served mankind so long as an excuse for murder is the greatest anachronism of our times.

"From the sublime to the ridiculous there is only one step," said Napoleon and some others before him. This step the nineteenth century took, and therefore we of the twentieth cannot afford to be either ridiculous or sublime.

It is a strange thing, however, that the further we get from gore in our lives the more we relish it in our drama. In the palmy days of French tragedy, when the Louises, that the most beautiful furniture in the world has immortalized, were sending people who displeased them to secret dungeons and to death, it was considered in far better form to have deaths in plays occur off stage, and have somebody tell about them. Today, when actual slaughter is hopelessly bad form, we can't get too much of it in our drama. Women who, when they have time to think about it, scream or faint at the sight of blood, sit in silent breathlessness as they watch the red relentless drip through the rafters that tells Sheriff Rance of the hiding place of the wounded road agent in the wonderful second act of "The Girl of the Golden West," and have the greatest thrill of their lives.

Blood is in our plays, our novels, everything, indeed, except in the columns of one New York newspaper, where, by managerial fiat, it is a word taboo.

But, in exchange for rampant redness of our intellectual horizon, which is but the twilight of sunken centuries of gore, we have accepted a new unwritten law that abolishes all the others. It says, Thou shalt not make thyself ridiculous.

Murder, of the variety called justifiable in the big cities, where alone the heart-beat of the times is heard, is largely confined to the ignorant. Why should one kill one's enemy when letting him live will far better achieve the purpose of vengeance?

When we begin to philosophize we cease to act. That is why poor Hamlet had such a hard struggle in getting rid of his uncle, and made but a bungling job of it in the last act.

Hamlet was hundreds of years ahead of his time, when killing came easy.

He was intellectually abreast of our time, when it is both uncomfortable and ridiculous. Philosophy and the cold selfishness of personal ease are rapidly making the "unwritten laws" obsolete.

In the South, to be sure, they still manage to eke out a pitiful existence, but even there the blood and thunder doctrine is fast falling into disrepute.

STORIES TOLD IN WASHINGTON

To a Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

At a ratification meeting following the last presidential election an excited Chicago orator said, according to Representative Madden:

"We have taken the strongholds of Democracy; we've taken New York; we've taken the Northwest, the Pacific Coast, and we've taken Missouri. What is there now left for us to take?"

"A drink!" shouted a bystander.

There was much confusion on the floor when Chairman Landis of the Committee on Printing presented a resolution relating to the printing of certain documents. It was hard to hear what was going on.

"Mr. Speaker," shouted Representative Fitzgerald of New York, "what are those documents?"

"The Chair gives it up," Speaker Cannon said. "The chair knows no more about it than the gentleman who confesses he knows nothing."

The marriage of Miss Alice Roosevelt to Representative Longworth brought hundreds of letters to the White House from all parts of the world. These letters were from young people who wanted assistance so they could get married, from others who needed advice because their love affairs had been unfortunate, and from parents who have children they are anxious about.

The strangest one is from a Roumanian father, who has three daughters. A marriage settlement is necessary in Roumania, and the writer says he worked for years to get enough money for the settlements for his daughters. He had enough when the bank failed in which the money was deposited.

The old Roumanian congratulated the President on the successful marriage of his daughter and asked him to send enough money to Roumania to provide settlements for the three portionless and sweetheartless daughters of his house.

SOME LONG NAMES

Mr. Ahrenhoersterbaumer of St. Louis Receives Honorable Mention.

A directory issued in Honolulu contains what is believed to be the longest name appearing in any such publication.

It is that of Miss Annie K. Keohoanaakalainhueakaweloaikanaka, which means substantially "Jack and the Bean Stalk."

Pauline Nabuchodonozowiszowna, a resident of Milwaukee, is probably champion of America, though Salvatore Schlianoditonnariello of Providence, R. I., and Bernard G. Ahrenhoersterbaumer of St. Louis may be regarded as entitled to honorable mention.

AT LUNCHEON

Dreamy Tells of How She Was Enticed by Burny Into a New Restaurant, Where She Dined on Bubbles and Went Hungry.

Written for the Post-Dispatch

By Rose Marion.

"ANYTHING," said Dreamy, but her tone was joyous, not weary. "Anything," said Burny, giving tone as well as word repetition.

"Why such graciousness?" asked Nippy.

"We know the feel of hunger," explained Dreamy. "We'll gladly share it with you, no matter what you order."

Nippy, actuated by a kindness-and-curiosity combination, did as she was begged. And she ordered a plenty.

"All Burny's fault," said Dreamy. "She took me to a new restaurant, where they taboo meat and many other joyous and juicy things.

"Adam," rebuked Burny, "didn't you tell me that you absolutely had to have a change?"

"How could I be expected to guess what kind of a change it would be? You usually know good things. I smacked my lips all morning in anticipation of that new kind of lunch," said Dreamy.

"Several persons told me that place was dandy," said Burny. "I ate some glorious salad at a girl's home, and she said she got the recipe there. My one hope was to have you taste that salad."

"I have tasted," said Dreamy. "Never again for me! The salad was possible, but one cannot live on salad alone."

"It really was a nice restaurant," said Burny, "and everybody there seemed to belong there—except us. Dreamy can't exist without whipped-cream coffee, and she wouldn't have the kind they had. I'm old maidish about tea. Not a drop did they have. Food was good, but it was so different that we felt as if we hadn't eaten a bite, although we had squandered as much as usual.

"Dreamy said that she felt as if she'd dined on bubbles, and I was still faint. Queerest thing about it was that the place was full of men. Dreamy said that was proof that men are less materialistic than women. I said that most men make food fusses at home in revenge for what they eat elsewhere.

"She suggested that we go somewhere for something to drink. We did. It was a woman's restaurant, and Dreamy smiled as she avoided shopping bags and opera-glass cases and made her way to a dinky table in the farthest corner.

"'Ah, this is home,' she said, with delight.

"We each had a big sundae and a lot of good little cakes. I had a pot of tea and she had whipped-cream coffee.

"Good? I guess yes! And it didn't cost a penny more than that bubbly stuff.

"There's a sad part to this story. Dreamy became ill about 3 o'clock in the afternoon and couldn't go to the ball game. Progressive luncheons don't agree with her."

THE NEWEST BOOKS

JAMES BALL NAYLOR'S new novel, "The Kentuckian," published by the C. M. Clark Publishing Co. of Boston, was discussed by the Once-A-Week Book Club at its latest meeting.

"I hope," began the High School Teacher, "that we're not in for a series of novels named after the various States of our glorious Union, but the outlook is threatening. Already we've had 'The Virginian' and 'The Missourian'—and now comes 'The Kentuckian,' so it may be that 'The New Yorker' and 'The Mississipian' and 'The Vermonter' and 'The Pennsylvanian' and all the rest of the 45—isn't it?—are on the way."

"Playwright Gus Thomas, once of St. Louis, is to blame," laughed the Old Playgoer. "His dramatic successes, 'Alabama' and 'In Mizzourah' and 'Arizona' revealed the catchiness of the titles based on States, and now our fiction is beginning to feel the effects of it. It's rather a terrifying prospect—for, after they've got through with the States, you know, they may begin on the counties and follow that with the cities and towns, so really there's no limit to the new menace."

"Oh, say, now, that isn't quite fair," protested the former Congressman, "although it does look like the novelists of the day are becoming commercially shrewd in using titles that give them an established constituency—as we say in politics—at the outset. All the same, I think the title of 'The Kentuckian' is justified. That fine young chap, Vance Chatham, stood essentially for his State when he settled down in Ohio to fight horse thieves and argue about slavery in the early 60's. He was certainly 'The Kentuckian' to the people of his new environment."

"And a very admirable kind of hero, too—almost as much so as 'The Virginian,'" chimed in The Girl. "I must confess I'm always captivated by a hero who makes his first appearance on horseback—and when that appearance is followed so promptly by a thrilling personal encounter with the villain, as in the present case, well, I surrender unconditionally right then and there. I like Vance Chatham first-rate."

"So do I," agreed the Artist, "and mainly because he belongs to the type of dandified fighters who've been popular ever since the first novel was written or the first tale told. A young fellow who looks so spick and span a cavalier that the big six-footer villain sneers at him as a coxcomb, and who then whips the villain to a standstill with his bare fists—say, there's a hero not to be sniffed at! And when this takes place in the first chapter, you know there's going to be 'something doing' all through the book."

"What I liked most in the story," said the Kindergarten Director, "is that it tastes of the soil, so to speak. Mr. Naylor seems to know his rustic Ohioans of the past generation very intimately, and he draws them well and with apparent faithfulness. If Irving Bacheller hadn't already made such a hit with 'D'ri and I' and 'Eben Holden,' and the late Edwin Noyes Westcott with 'David Harum,' I should predict that quaint Bill Kirk and the ingenuous country lad who tells the story of 'The Kentuckian' would secure a fine success for this book, they're such a natural and amusing couple. But the field has been a bit overworked, I fear."

"The most picturesque figure in the story," suggested the High School Teacher "is that of Shep. Dickson, the chief of the Ohio gang of horse-thieves which Vance Chatham helped to break up. He's a second John A. Murrell of those same days in the Mississippi Valley, and the imperious way in which he bosses John Gaston and Marsh Colby, the fighting furnace-master, and the other scoundrels of the outlaw gang makes one admire him despite his villainy."

"I liked the heroine, sweet Ruth Gaston, best of all," observed the Literary Grain Broker. "She's a fine girl, loyal to 'The Kentuckian' and fearless in snubbing Marsh Colby, even though he did have such a secret hold on her drunken old uncle, John Gaston. That was a fine scene near the close of the book, where, after Vance Chatham has been wounded in the lonely Schoolhouse by a night attack of the horse-thieves, and after he has killed Marsh Colby, Ruth goes to him through the dark woods. And I suppose those days bred just such plucky women as Ruth."

"Of course they did," said the former Congressman. "American women of the early '60's proved that they were worthy descendants of the pioneer women of Colonial times, and Ruth Gaston is a good example of the type."

"There's one thing in the story that seemed inconsistent to me, however," remarked the Artist, "and that is that Vance Chatham, the Kentuckian, although belonging to the old slaveholding aristocracy of the South, enlisted in the Union army when the Civil War began and fought against his own people. That didn't seem natural to me."

"I don't see why," commented the High School Teacher. "Even in Kentucky, there was a strong Union sentiment, and that State furnished many soldiers to the Union. Many a Kentuckian fought against his brother in the opposing army in those days."

"But I was in hopes," ventured The Girl, "that Vance would recover his 'old Kentucky home' after the war and take Ruth Gaston back there as his bride."

"There wasn't any recovering of old Southern homes in real life," responded the former Congressman, "and so there's no warrant for it in fiction. Vance Chatham had his own row to hoe, just like all the rest of his people, and he buckled down to the job like a man."

"All the same," said The Girl, "it would have made a perfectly lovely finish for the story."

A GREATER HUNTER THAN BOONE.

As an implacable hunter of Indians, in the days of the early settlers of the Ohio Valley, Lew Wetzel far outdid Daniel Boone. At least we are so informed in "The Spirit of the Border," by Zane Grey, published by A. L. Burt Co., and the author does his best to make the assertion good. It is a story of the work of the Moravian Missionaries in the latter part of the eighteenth century, based on the diary of Col. Ebenezer Zane, a prominent hunter-pioneer who labored in the settlement of the western country as it was then known.

Tragedy runs like a scarlet thread through the entire story, in which the renegades Simon and Jim Girty play a part, while Lew Wetzel, a man whose family had been wiped out by the Indians, acts as an avenger. The picture drawn of Wetzel is that of one almost superhuman in strength, skill and relentless perseverance. Indeed, he is a fascinating type of the wilderness hero whose legitimate prey is the aborigine.

Details of the establishment and destruction of the Moravian "Village of Peace" are given at some length, and with minute description. The efforts to Christianize the Indians are described and the author has depicted the characters of the leaders of the several Indian tribes with great care.

Unlike the average Indian story teller, Zane Grey does not spare his white characters. Nor are all his Indians "varmints." The brutality of the times is well depicted, but it is relieved by the heroism incidental to such an epoch, and the lovers do not all come to grief. The story of the massacre of the Christian Indians and the burning of the Moravian village is of historical interest. "The Spirit of the Border," in short, is a romance above the average in scope and execution.

A TRIBUTE TO SPINSTERHOOD.

The gentle little old maid, unselfish, sweet, and delicate, whom we all know, is a character that has been almost neglected in our literature. Those who would portray spinsterhood have done so in caricature, presenting the familiar type of awkward, angular, shrill-voiced personage, elderly and forlorn, whom we are asked to laugh at in books and plays. It has been left for Roy Rolfe Gilson, in his romance Miss Primrose (Harpers), to give this quiet heroine her due, and in drawing Letitia Primrose, with her sweetness and purity, her gentle humor, her innocence of the darker side of life, and her unselfish and life-long devotion to others, he has but justly recognized the worth of an unostentatious force that does much for the purity and sweetness of life. There are scores of just such women scattered over the land, and scores of little boys, no doubt, like Bertram Weatherby, to love them; but no one but Mr. Gilson has yet been found with the artistry to pen so beautiful a tribute. It is a book, says the San Francisco Argonaut, to put on the same shelf with The Golden Age, with The Reveries of a Bachelor, and Back to Arcady.

WAS ADAM A VEGETARIAN?

Volume XII of the Jewish Encyclopedia tells us, among other things, that Adam was a vegeterian. He was prohibited from eating meat. "Dominion" over the animals, in Genesis, chapter 1, verse 28, is said to signify the privilege of using them for labor only. "But after the flood," says the writer of the article on Vegetarianism, "when the animals were saved in Noah's ark, the right of consuming them was granted to man." "Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you," is the text of Genesis IX, verse 3. Nearly two columns trace the further history of vegetarianism and meat-eating among the Semitic peoples, giving the reasons for the various dietetic regulations which govern the orthodox Jew of today.

This is an example of the thoroughness of this great encyclopedia, which is now concluded with the twelfth volume. The scope and contents of the entire work require a guide-book of 162 pages, although each volume is self-indexed. More than six hundred scholars and specialists in all parts of the world have devoted their time and efforts to make the Jewish Encyclopedia as comprehensive and authoritative as possible. As a result, the work is of very great interest to the reader and student of history, whether he be of Semitic descent or not. The Semitic race being one of the most important and well-defined branches of the human family, this encyclopedia really constitutes a panoramic review of the history of civilization, to a great degree. Upwards of 2000 illustrations, a large number of them being color plates, photogravures and reproductions of ancient documents, lighten the text. The work is written in a broad spirit, impartial and unbiased. Nowhere else is such a fund of information on similar subjects to be found. (Funk & Wagnalls Company; New York.)

SOCIALISM IN AMERICA

What It Means.

In reply to its recent editorial, "What Is Socialism?" the Post-Dispatch has received many replies, some of which are here published:

Run Railroads as Well as Armies.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am unable to formulate a working plan on the Socialist idea, but surely we could nationalize the railroads, the mines, oil fields and such things as a start, and gradually develop the idea. This would curtail the power of the trusts and is the only feasible remedy for existing evils.

Surely if we can run the Government, army, navy and such things, we can also run the railroads, etc.

A monopoly of land has been the curse of Europe, and consequently ought to be put beyond the possible here.

There is no doubt that Socialism, if it could be carried out, would mean equality and do away with almost all the evils of today, for the reason that without the competition occasioned by greed the world would be nearly a heaven.

I am inclined to think that Socialists will be astonished at the increase of votes in their favor as soon as a feasible plan for a beginning is offered.

ANGLO-AMERICAN.

The Case Plainly Stated.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

What economic changes would Socialism produce?

It would exchange individual ownership for collective ownership.

This is already done among capitalists.

Socialism would exchange individual effort for collective co-operative enterprise, equitable division of profits for competition in trade. All this is practiced in all the important businesses by the capitalists.

Among the industrial masses private ownership and competition, except for a job, are things of the past; and as capitalists are practicing the principles, if not the spirit, of socialism, the destruction of the competitive system is not an issue that the Socialists have to meet.

It may be claimed that the farmers are independent of the system, but when we consider that of the two great staples, wheat and cattle, a large portion is raised on large ranches operated by hired labor, and that all the sugar and most of the cotton plantations, as well as many large estates in the North owned by foreign landlords, all of which have tenantry conditions that rival that of the English landlords of Ireland, and that many of the ordinary farms are cultivated by tenants and the great number of mortgagers, who are practically tenants, there are not many left; and, considering the power of the trust to fix the price of all that the farmer sells and buys, which are so fixed as to absorb all the net profits, the farmer is not much better off than his brother wage slave.

So we see that monopoly, the natural result of private ownership, has put the working class in a position that they must choose between going back to serfdom and slavery or seek to save themselves by adopting Socialism.

Socialism is being evolved out of economic conditions resulting from the inventions which revolutionized the methods of production and transportation and gave capitalists their opportunity and to Socialism its necessity.

But what about the political aspect of the situation?

There is nothing to hinder the State from doing anything that is a public necessity. Many such services are performed now. The Postoffice is a striking example of the ability to manage the most complicated business, notwithstanding the grafting done by private business interests and swindles and fraud perpetrated by the railroads.

E. D. WALDORF.

Wealth a Trust.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

If, as the Socialists claim, our present social system with its unequal distribution of wealth, and not innate wickedness of the man who commits crime, is the cause of his action, how do they account for the commission of crime among the wealthy classes?

Socialists, with Materialists, look no farther than this life, which is simply a trial for the future life. Providence has given wealth to the rich man that he may use it for the betterment of humanity, and woe to him if he misuses it; and poverty to the poor man, that by his patient endurance he may merit the reward in store for him. "Whatever is, is right," would be a good solution to this problem.

MADALINE CARSON.

Bryan and Socialism

Mr. Bryan's Political Instinct.

From the New York Globe.

Mr. Bryan's present attitude, as revealed in this article, does not fundamentally differ from that revealed by President Roosevelt in his well-known Minneapolis speech—that individualism is the ideal, but that to secure it and to preserve competition, "in a constantly increasing number of cases to shackle cunning as in the past we have shackled force," and that new conditions "make necessary a change from the old attitude of the state and nation toward property." At the recent dinner of the Democratic club De Lancey Nicoll praised Mr. Bryan. Was the applause prophetic—born of subconscious knowledge of what Mr. Bryan was about to say in a magazine? Mr. Bryan represents the rural rather than the urban agitator, and the farmer is not as receptive to socialism as the city workman. Perhaps Mr. Bryan's political instinct senses this difference—is that which leads him tentatively to throw the weight of his influence on the anti-socialistic side.

THE ALTARS OF VENICE

(Art and Chivalry.)

THE two relief tablets from Venetian altars in the Post-Dispatch collection for the schools stand for the art of Southern Europe in the centuries often called the "Dark Ages," but really the ages when chivalry controlled all Europe.

Their style is that of the time before the birth of Donatello, and his work in sculpture had made it possible for Raphael and Michael Angelo to do their work in painting. When it is seen in painting this style is usually called "the pro-Raphaelite."

The art of Venice, after the time of Donatello, was very different from its art in the "Dark Ages." During the "Dark Ages" youths who seemed to have strong arms and good brains were usually "trained to arms," while those who seemed sickly and not likely to be of much account in the world were taught to read and trained for the church.

We must thank these sickly youths for all we most value now, not only in art, but in everything else we most prize, for they kept the world from going wholly back to barbarism.

While their strong brothers outside, who had been trained in chivalry, were keeping the world in an uproar they worked in their cells to copy old Latin books and to make the most wonderfully "illuminated" Latin prayers. Though the drawing in their pictures is usually crude, as it is in the reliefs from the Venetian altar, they often colored their work in a most beautiful way and had such patience in doing it that it is beyond anything we can do now to imitate it. Often they put into it their belief that the only way such a world as they knew of outside their walls could be saved was by men with the best minds going out into it to stand its worst in the hope of helping it.

The crown they used as an emblem in work of this kind is the crown of thorns on the cross in the Venetian relief. Often, while they were copying Latin books in their cells or making pictures on the margin of their Latin prayers, there would be an uproar at the gate and they would find wounded fugitives, chased by their enemies and about to be killed. Then a man who had been taught to read in his youth, because he was sickly and of not much account, took the cross from the altar and held it between those who were trying to escape and those who were trying to kill them. Usually, but not always, armed men were afraid to strike with their swords over the cross, and usually the fugitives were brought inside the gate and seated on the steps of the altar with the cross placed above them. This was called "taking the sanctuary."

Through all Europe chivalry was the religion of fighting men. It did not try to teach them to stop fighting, but to fight as much as they liked without being disgusting. It taught them not to cut off each other's heads to make cups of the skulls, and tried to teach them not to cut each other's throats after one or the other had fallen. It also tauht them to be polite to women, and when they were successful in war to use part of their plunder in building churches and helping to pay for carving marble altars such as those at Venice.

The Venetian nobles, when they went to war on coasts where old Greek temples had been turned into churches or Mohammedan mosques, were glad to take from them their finest marbles and most precious stones for the great cathedral or "Duomo" at Venice. As it still stands, this cathedral is thought by some to be one of the most beautiful buildings in the world.

The Venetian nobles thought it made them sure of heaven if they could plunder some very fine piece of marble to go into the inside walls of their splendid cathedral. Those who had taught them chivalry as a religion feared that if they were taught that Christianity meant not fighting at all and loving their enemies, they would have nothing to do with it. So chivalry, as a religion of the fighting men of the dark ages, was a compromise on Christianity.

In the cells where they illuminated their prayers and copied their Latin books, the sickly brothers of those fighting men kept both art and religion alive until the time of Donatelle, when men who learned to read Latin books began to laugh at chivalry as the great Cervantes did in Spain, though he was himself a soldier.

CHOICE STORIES

Why They Wore Black.

Of the late William R. Harper, president of the University of Chicago, a Chicagoan said:

"President Harper was a punctual man, and he asked punctuality of all with whom he dealt.

"I once accompanied him to a small town in the State of New York on business. On our return journey the train was late. We had to wait for it in a cold and dismal station over two hours.

"As we walked back and forth on the station platform we complained bitterly of the delay.

"'Even the station attendants look dreary,' said I. 'They look as dreary and wretched as we feel. And they are all wearing black neckties. They must be in mourning. I wonder what they are in mourning for?'

"'In mourning for the late train,' said President Harper."

The Skibbereen Bull.

The Rev. J. J. Curran, treasurer of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, was talking in Wilkesbarre about St. Patrick's Day. From this subject, turning naturally to the subject of bulls, he said:

"An Englishman was once traveling in the South of Ireland, when he came to a village called Skibbereen.

"The name struck him as being very peculiar and odd, and he asked a villager why the town was so called.

"'Sure,' the villager replied, 'I thought even an Englishman could have seen the reason for that. It's called Skibbereen to distinguish it from other places of the same name.'"

His Object.

Corporal James Tanner, the head of the Grand Army of the Republic, was talking in Washington about a grafter.

"He thinks all men are grafters," said Corporal Tanner, "because he is one himself. So does the coward think all men share his cowardice.

"There is a story about a young recruit, who, in his first engagement, lost heart. The ping-g-g of the bullets terrified him. Syping a hole in the ground, he broke from the ranks, rushed to it, and threw himself within, cowering against the earth.

"An officer, disgusted, ran to the terrified recruit, clapped him on the shoulder, and said:

"'Rejoin your company, sir'

"The lad looked up at the officer and answered:

"'No you don't. You want this hole for yourself.'"

SMALL SMILES

Of Course He Couldn't.

A barrister once pleaded with great ability the cause of his client for nearly an hour. When he had finished, his learned friend on the other side, with a supercilious sneer, remarked that he did not understand a word the other man had said.

"I believe it, for I was expounding law!" said the first speaker.

Just the Thing.

Her husband: All right. The weather man says it will be colder tomorrow.—Chicago News.

Ought to Be Pun-ished for This.

"This confinement," said the long-faced prison visitor, "must distress you greatly."

"Yes," replied the facetious convict, "I find the prisons bars grating."

"Ah! life to you is a failure."

"Yes, it's nothing but a cell."—Philadelphia Times.

He Knew.

"They say pie knives have gone out of style," said the New York man.

"Nothing of the kind," replied the Chicagoan; "I never eat pie with anything else!"—Yonkers Statesman.

A Serious Undertaking.

"Mr. McBride is looking as solemn as an undertaker these days."

"Exactly. He's going to undertake to support a wife, beginning next Tuesday."—Philadelphia Ledger.

When Women Carry Pistols.

Evidently the man was a foodpad. The woman did not quail.

On the contrary, she took a pistol from her muff.

"You horrid thing," she said. "If this was loaded and I knew how to cock it I'd make you go right away."

Before he got over his astonishment the police arrived.

Odd Sights in India.

Ed Howe, the breezy editor of the Atchison (Kan.) Globe, has been seeing some strange sights in the far East. In a letter to his newspaper he says:

"In India I saw loose camels running away from the train, and a camel galloping is an amusing and ungainly sight. I saw wild monkeys, parrots, pheasants, snipe, black duck, etc., for game is plentiful here as natives are not permitted to own guns. * * * Every station was interesting. At one I saw a rajah, with a lot of retainers carrying queer looking swords; another retainer carried a jewelled staff, a warning to all common people to get out of the way. On one lonely, dusty road I saw two travellers dressed in bright colors, riding a camel; evidently making a long journey, for several oxen followed carrying baggage on their back. Nearby I saw a train of oxen carrying water in enormous skins. When we stopped as long as ten minutes at a station, a native barber would appear and offer to shave me for 4 cents. The summits of foothills and mountains were often capped with old castles, and nearly every railroad building along the way had a dome-shaped roof, like a mosque. When the railroad was built the rajah through whose country it ran said to the builders: 'Build your stations to resembles mosques and you may have the right of way.'"

WHO HAS THE MOST FUN?

Who among us has the most fun nowadays? One can only guess, but guessing on such a question is some fun in itself.

We guess uncle Mark Twain has a fair amount of daily sport. He is a very kind man, says Harper's Weekly, and finds many opportunities nowadays to do public services of a benevolent sort to great advantage. The papers, as we write, say he is going to preside at a meeting for the benefit of the blind. He does such things often, and makes very good speeches on such occasions and on all occasions when he speaks at all. To exercise the gift of discourse to edification is a high pleasure. Mark does it vocally and by word of pen. His command of good, and also of bad, language is fluent, comprehensive and exact. He practices an art of which he is a master, and he indulges the impulses of a benevolent spirit. Of course he has a good time.

Uncle Andrew Carnegie has a good time, too. That is notorious. He has money to spend and spends it. His mind is very active, his health is good. His interest in life and everything that bears on it is lively and acute, and he takes a hand in every game that interests him. According to the books and to the general rule of human experience, he ought to be quite gloomy because he is so rich. But he isn't gloomy at all. He has a tiptop time.

And of course President Roosevelt has a lot of fun. Action and reaction is the rule of physics, but it is not the rule of him. He has the exhilaration of perpetual action without any considerable reaction that anyone ever hears of.

Thomas Edison must have fun, too. The processes of inventive thought must be exceedingly interesting, especially when they pan out as well as Mr. Edison's processes do. He has the pleasures of the imagination added to the joys that come from searching after truth and getting clamps on it. He makes money, too, but that to him is an incident and a troublesome, but necessary digression from the pursuit of happiness.

Luther Burbank, the plant wizard, must have a vast deal of fun of a sort not unlike Edison's. Burbank began work in a plow factory, and kept his wonderful mind on the improvement of machinery just long enough to make some money with which to undertake the remodeling of the vegetable world. Then he invented a new potato, and made a little more money and moved to California, where he opened a plant factory. Anyone who does not know of the marvels he has done should read up about him. There is joy, of course, in creation, else things wouldn't have been created. Burbank must have tasted that joy in abundant measure. He has never made much money for himself, because his mind has never dwelt much on that quest, but he is one of the fortunate men of his generation, a marvelous creature who has followed his bent and really benefited mankind.

We guess it is one of the conditions of having any notable amount of fun that there should be resulting benefit to mankind.

McCLOSKEY SHOWS VERY GOOD HITTER

Bennett, the California Second Baseman, Displays Ability With the Ash—Hoelskoetter as a Pitcher—Baseball News and Gossip.

Manager McCloskey of the Cardinals is working hard to undo the mistakes of the many men who had to do with the management of the Cardinals immediately prior to this season. He seems to be succeeding very well, too. On Friday he produced Bennett, a very distinct improvement over Perrine with the bat, at second base. Bennett hits with a snappy wrist motion, such as distinguished the late lamented Jim Clements; picks good balls, goes at them right and pickles them properly. He sped some stingers Friday afternoon. Though he acted like a man who would be lost on a hard ground around second, he is undoubtedly a fine sticker and fast on his feet. Bennett very greatly resembles Joe Quinn, the famous second baseman who played so long in this city. He is built, walks, swings his arms and possesses the same come-all-ye countenance as the sturdy little fellow who is now a Cass avenue undertaker.

From Bennett's showing one would say that we have kissed a fond good-by to Nig Perrine at second base.

James, Too, Can Hit.

James, another Californian, played short. He is not a shortstop, but he shaped up like a hitter. His home is at first base. James is the 18-year-old wonder Mr. McCloskey has been talking so much of. He is a big boy and not a bit clever on his feet, but he is evidently capable of playing some baseball.

Himes played center field. Barring one ghastly muff, he did well enough. He, too, hits well at the ball, but seems lax in the field.

To be sure, all of McCloskey's men were looking well, because they were all hitting. Smith, the South Bend pedagogue who pitched for the Ravens, was very thoroughly dusted. He tried hard, used curve and speed, was perfectly supported, fielded splendidly himself and was beaten simply because he was hit hard and sequentially. The total of 10 hits accredited the Cardinals by no means represents the volume of hitting done. Wallace, O'Brien and the outfielders took care of many hard drives. The 10 hits secured by the Cardinals represent the hardest kind of clean sticking. Smith did everything he could, but he simply did not have the stuff wherewith to beat the batters. He seemed to have just enough speed to hit nicely.

Nordyke a Lively Fellow.

Nordyke is a very likely juggins around first, but seems unable to locate the bag with his feet when taking a throw. He wanders around in the neighborhood of the sack before he locates it. This is a dangerous habit. Some day in a close race of ball and runner, Nordyke will step behind the bag and get killed.

Barring his peculiarity, he seems to be all right. He fielded cleanly and held his throws well. He does not seem to have the reach and steadiness of Jones.

Nordyke looks good at the bat. He makes a very pretty play on an attempted steal. He was told that the runner was going on the next ball and that he could hit, or not, as pleased him. The ball was high on the outside.

Apparently, Nordyke did not make up his mind to hit until he saw that the ball was a particularly suitable one for his purpose. He cracked it beautifully with wrist stroke. A marvelous one-hand stop by Beckley broke up a pretty play.

McCarthy a Good Thrower.

Young McCarthy, who caught for McCloskey, looks like a good man up to his ears. He is well built, has a good arm and evidently can bat some. He made several perfect throws yesterday, two of which were dropped by James. If McCarthy can think he may make a very good man.

Hoelskoetter has good enough curves and a very nice shoot to his fast ball, but he is amateurish in his actions around the box. When he becomes steadier and more deliberate he may make a good pitcher.

The Ravens found him as hard to hit as did the teams in Texas. They say that he was a better pitcher than Leifield in the Western League, and Leifield has made very good at Pittsburg.

McCloskey is having trouble with Tebeau about Walter Frabtz, the tall Oklahoman, whom he purchased on trial from George Tebeau of Kansas City. He didn't display much as a pitcher, though he did come along as a hitter. McCloskey first notified Tebeau that he would return Frantz to him. As the boy displayed batting ability, McCloskey regretted his haste in turning him down and recalled his release. Now Tebeau refuses to waive the original notice of release, and demands the man. McCloskey is trying to persuade him to waive, but it is doubtful that he will do so.

One of the objections to Frantz was that he would not play on Sunday. It is said, however, that he has agreed to set aside his scruples provided he is not returned to Kansas City. The players seem to be quite as willing to go to limbo as back to Tebeau.

Players Complain of Colds.

O'Brien and Powell of the Ravens complain bitterly of colds and Grady of the Cardinals is also stoven up. Taylor, too, feels kinky and many other players are under the weather. Powell is boiling all over with a cold. O'Brien has neuralgia of the eye and is scarce playing his game at the bat.

Hartzell and Koehler are still the hitless pair of the Ravens. They do not seem to be able to get into the same lot as a pitched ball. Hemphill began to hit yesterday and it is expected of him that he will keep it up. Koehler never will hit, but he is so good a fielder that he must be a good hitter indeed who will succeed him in center. So everyone is looking at Hartzell and wondering when he will knock a hard grounder to the infield. So far he has displayed symptoms of locomotor ataxia of the batting average.

GRESHAM WORSTED BY NATIVE SONS

M. A. C. Bantamweight Given the Hot End of a Frisco Decision.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 7.—Every one of the national boxing championships of the Amateur Athletic Union have been won during the tournament which concluded last night at Mechanics' Pavilion by members of the Olympic Club of this city.

The out-of-town entries complained bitterly that the judges were influenced in their decisions by the native son idea and that it was impossible for an outside boxer to win from a native-born California boxer, except on a knockout. There did seem to be some reason for questioning the decision in the J. Carroll-R. E. Gresham bout, the final in the 105-pound class. The boys fought viciously from the tap of the gong until the suspension of hostilities, Gresham at all times being the aggressor. The decision in favor of the local boy was soundly hissed by the spectators, some of whom declared that the Missourian had been boldly robbed. At all times it seemed that Gresham had his man beaten, his inability to land a finishing blow, perhaps, cost him the decision, as he could in no other way have more demonstrated his superiority. Summary:

Finals:

105-pound class—J. Carroll, Olympic Club, won a close decision over R. E. Gresham, Missouri A. C. The decision was not well received by a large number of the spectators.

158-pound class—Henry Finck, Olympic Club, was given the decision over George Murray, unattached, at the end of four rounds.

115-pound class—Harry Baker, Olympic Club, got the decision over T. A. Stone, New York A. C., at the end of the fourth round, winning the championship.

125-pound class—W. J. Leonard, Olympic Club, beat M. Augusta, Brooklyn A. C.

135 pounds—Lew Powell, Olympic Club, was given the decision over William Wolff, Ariel Club, in the first round. Wolff repeatedly violated the rules by holding his man and was warned several times to desist by the referee, who finally disqualified him.

145-pound class—W. D. McDonald, Olympic Club, declared the winner without a contest. It was announced that both McKinnon of Boston and James Ellis of the South Side Club had broken their hands and were unable to fight.

SULLIVAN MAY BOX YOUNG BRITT

Boxing Instructor of the Missouri Athletic Club May Meet Californian.

Information was received in St. Louis Saturday to the effect that Brooklyn Tommy Sullivan, the boxing instructor of the Missouri Athletic Club, had been matched with Jimmy Britt, ex-lightweight champion for a 20-round bout to be held in San Francisco in May.

Sullivan is in Frisco at present in charge of the boxing squad of the Cherry Diamond organization whose members have been competing in the Amateur Athletic Union championships which concluded Friday night.

Sullivan has been anxious to return to the ring for some time, but said that he would only meet the topnotchers. During the visit of Britt and Nelson to St. Louis last winter he endeavored to obtain matches with both men, but the theatrical engagements of Nelson and Britt interfered with the consummation of his plans. Sullivan should acquit himself creditably in the coming bout, as he is a fighter of the same type as Britt, being clever and skillful, but sans a knockout wallop.

MISS FARMER, 16, WEDS MAN OF 45

Child's Mother Gives Permission and License Is Issued in Clayton.

Wearing a skirt that stopped two inches above pretty ankles, Alpha Farmer, 16 years old, of 8309 Polk street, appeared in the marriage license office at Clayton Saturday with George Smith of St. Louis, 45 years old. Mrs. Ada Farmer, mother of the girl, was present to signify her consent to the wedding.

Smith, six feet tall and of brawny build, blushed as he glanced down at his sweetheart's head before signing the clerk's record. Miss Farmer didn't blush at all. Mrs. Farmer smiled benignantly and inclusively.

"Can't somebody here finish the business?" Smith inquired as he paid for the license. He was told no one in the office had authority to tie the marital knot, but that Justice Preiss, a short distance away, could and would.

To Justice Preiss the trio repaired, and 15 minutes later emerged from the office with smiling faces. They caught the first interurban car for St. Louis.

ATHLETES MUST FULFIL OBLIGATIONS

Withdrawal From Events Will Not Be Allowed, Save by Referee's Permission.

It was announced Friday that the withdrawal of Parsons and Waller, which marred the success of the St. Louis University indoor meet at the Coliseum on March 17, had been officially acted upon by the W. A. A. U. and a resolution adopted to instruct all referees to strictly enforce the provisions of Rule 3 of the athletic rules of the A. A. U., which reads as follows: "If, during any athletic contest under the rules of the Amateur Athletic Union, a competitor shall conduct himself in a manner unbecoming a gentleman, or offensive to the officials, spectators or competitors, the referee shall have the power to disqualify him from further competition at the meeting; and if he thinks the offense worthy of additional punishment shall promptly make a detailed statement of the facts to the registration committee in whose territory the offense was committed."

The strict enforcement of the above rule by J. C. O'Brien, who refered the night of the meet, would have resulted in a formal consideration of the action of Parsons and Waller withdrawing from the meet, after their protest that Murray had stolen the 50-yard dash was disallowed, with the probable result that both runners would have been suspended.

It was brought out in the hearing that one of the members of the Jesuit faculty told Parsons and Waller at the time that he was indignant at their action in refusing to run in the 440-yard run and in disappointing thousands of spectators, and that he was going to retain from them the expense money that had been guaranteed. This, it was proven, the gentleman could have done, but later, it is said, he changed his mind and both the Wisconsin runners were given the same amount as though they had fulfilled their contract.

CAMBRIDGE WINS RACE FROM OXFORD

Light Blues Defeat Wearers of the Indigo in Great Annual Rowing Match on the Thames in Sixty-Third Renewal of the Event.

LONDON, April 7.—Cambridge won the university boat race from Oxford on the Thames today. Time, 18 minutes. The start was made at 12:03 p. m. Cambridge finished at 12:21.

The race was the sixty-third contest between crews of the two great English universities. Since 1853 the races have been held annually. Between 1829, the year of the first aquatic contest between these universities, and 1905, Oxford won 34 and Cambridge 27 times, the race in 1877 resulting in a dead heat. Last year Oxford won by three lengths, rowing the course from Putney to Mortlake in 20 minutes 35 seconds. At the outset this season Oxford was regarded as having the better chance of winning, her oarsmen being superior in weight and physique to those of Cambridge. Later, however, several members of the Oxford crew were incapacitated and in the betting yesterday Cambridge was the favorite.

Cambridge won by three and a half lengths, after an exciting contest. Time, 19m. 24s. Cambridge from the first was in the lead and never in the slightest danger. The Oxford men struggled gamely, but the work was so punishing that several of them collapsed at the finish. Weather was perfect. The day was bright and sunny, the wind was very light and the water was smooth and there was very little choice in the stations. Enormous crowds thronged all parts of the course.

Oxford won the toss and chose the Surrey side. The two boats got away nicely at 12:03 p. m. Cambridge struck the water first, pulling 38 strokes during the first minute to Oxford's 37. The nose of the Cambridge boat quickly showed in front and at the half-mile post Cambridge was a half length to the good and were rowing in lively style, with perfect finish to their strokes. They increased their lead to a full length before Craven Steps, about three-quarters of a mile from the start, were reached. Thereafter Cambridge drawe away with every stroke. At Hammersmith Bridge, one and three-quarters of a mile from the start, Cambridge already had the race well in hand, with a lead of over two lengths. The Oxford boat at that stage of the race was rolling badly. Shortly afterward the Oxford men spurted a little and took their rival's water, but from that time on it was merely a procession, though the Oxford oarsmen stuck to their work in a most persevering manner. Cambridge shot past Barnes' Bridge, a little over 3 1-2 miles from the start, about five lengths in front of the Oxford boat, some of whose oarsmen were showing signs of distress. Cambridge could have won practically by any distance they liked, but their stroke slowed down on nearing the finish and Cambridge passed the winning post the easiest of winners.

TRAINER ENGAGED FOR CHRISTIAN BROTHERS

William Roberts, who coached and trained the athletes of St. Joseph College, Manchester, England, for several years, has been engaged to train the youngsters at the Christian Brothers' College the coming spring.

Some 15 years ago Roberts, then a student at the Manchester school, evinced wonderful talent as an all around athlete. Brother Justin, now president of the C. B. C., was then in England. He made Roberts trainer and coach of St. Joseph's College.

After his school term he remained as coach and trainer for several years, then he embarked to this country and has had charge of athletics at the different schools of the brothers in the East. Brother Justin sent for him and he arrived at the Cote Brilliante College this morning.

Since Roberts has taken charge a general revival of enthusiasm has taken place. Every evening some 15 boys, under Capt. Stolze, report for track practice. The baseball team has had double time for practice.

Roberts has taken the baseball diamond under his personal care and has put it into superb condition.

Baseball at C. B. C.

C. B. C. has a strong baseball team. The players expect to take two of the three games which are scheduled with St. Louis University.

The fear that C. B. C. would be weak in the box is now dissipated. A strong youngster named Philibert has made his appearance. In a practice game he showed wonderful speed, control and nerve, and won with the best team of C. B. C. against him.

The college boys think they have the best infield among the school teams of the city in Smith, Ratican, Longenotti and Ryan. The outfield will be rather strong also. One of the best performers is Gleese.

BUSY DAYS FOR MISSOURI A. C

Marathon Race, Indoor Meet and Other Events Will Keep Athletes Very Busy.

That Athletic Director Bassett of the Missouri Athletic Club does not intend to abate during the summer the pace he has set for entertainment during the winter season is demonstrated by the athletic program he has arranged for this month. April 11 will be ladies' night at the club. A special aquatic meet will be given in their honor. The usual monthly boxing tournament will be held April 21, and the Western Amateur Athletic Union cross-country championships the same day. April 28 the monster indoor meet to be given under the auspices of the M. A. C. at the Jai Alai Building will be held. A week later, May 5, the Marathon race will be run, and on June 1, 2 and 4 the Western A. A. U. boxing and wrestling championships will be held.

Captain Goessling, Otto Schwarz, Sam Stein, Gwynne Evans, E. E. Neville, Dute Cabanne, young Chouteau and John C. Meyers will all be competitors in the different events April 11, and the program should prove to be an interesting one.

The boxing tournament will probably draw most of its entries from among unattached boys, as the members of the M. A. C. squad, who are now on their way back from Frisco, will be sent to Cincinnati to compete in the tournament of the Cincinnati Gynasium and Athletic Club. Marshall Eaton, who made such an excellent impression on followers of the amateur game, will again be one of the entries and a special effort will be made to obtain an opponent of some class for him.

R. Bressi and Charles Jacobs, who won their bouts in the 145-pound class at the tournament of March 31, will also clash.

Among the other clever youngsters who will probably be among the entries are Fred C. Jones, 125 pounds, one of the cleverest sparrers in the city; John Shelton, 115 pounds, and W. A. Davidson, 135 pounds.

Interest in Cross-Country Runs.

Considerably more concern is being evinced in the W. A. A. U. cross-country championships than obtained last year. Missouri State University has written that it will probably send a team and Polytechnic College of Fort Worth, Tex., also have a journey to St. Louis in contemplation. The race will be run in Forest Park and prizes will be given to the winning individuals and teams. Points will be awarded to the entrants scoring the smallest number of points, the latter being awarded as follows: First, 1; second, 2; third, 3; fourth, 4, etc. Athletic organizations will be allowed to enter as many of their members as they choose in the events, but only the score of the best five will count in the recapitulation.

The indoor meet scheduled for the Jai Alai Building will probably be the biggest event the M. A. C. has ever undertaken. Twenty-six numbers are on the program and the probabilities are that such notables as Parsons and Eckersall and the members of the Wisconsin and Missouri University relay teams will be among the competitors.

Relay races will be a special feature of the program, and Mr. Bassett has arranged them for interscholastics, high schools, academies, soldiers and turners.

Marathon Race for May.

The Marathon race will be held during the first week in May and the long distance runners of the city are now preparing for the event. Marks, Waters, Lambrakis, Hatch and Corey of Chicago are expected to be contestants, and there is some talk of extending an invitation to Thomas J. Hicks of Cambridgeport, Mass., who won the Marathon race in the Olympic games revival held at the World's Fair grounds in 1904.

The W. A. A. U. boxing championships should furnish the best boxing entertainment St. Louis has had this year. All of the local cracks are sure to enter and the long deferred opportunities to see Gescheke and McCann, Jones and Kirk, Schneider and Eaton, Lydon and Grupp will at last become a fact, for all of these boxers are anxious to appear in the tournament and win the amateur championship of the Western country in their respective classes.

Not Many Left.

"THE SPORTSMAN'S NICHE

It seems to be a pity that when the Amateur Athletic Union decided to award its boxing championships to the Olympic Club of San Francisco that it did not take the precaution of providing that the judges of boxing should be from cities not represented in the tournament. This would have done away with the wild cry of "No one can win but a native son," which is now being emitted by the Easterners who went to box in San Francisco and were beaten. It is not improbable that the decisions were fair. I have never known of any similar tournament in which such protests were not made. But ripe judgment should have warned the A. A. U. that such things would inevitably occur unless it sent men from disinterested towns to judge this tourney.

It is true that San Francisco has long been notorious for its devotion and blind adherence to its native-born boxers. Especially in this case, then, should the authorities of the A. A. U. have made provision so that there would be no possible chance for a protest against the decision of the judges.

Yet how can the authorities of the A. A. U. sell sporting goods and advertise young violinists and then attend to its business.

The morning papers censure Referee Graney for the bad decisions. It is but fair to say that the decisions were not given by Graney, but by two judges. Graney was there to see that the rules were observed, not to render judgment.

Judging from the reports we have read of decisions given in San Francisco boxing matches, articles of agreement should read "And in case the Native Son is alive at the end of the bout he shall be declared the winner."

Preserve us from the righteous anger and bitter denunciation which will be that of Capt. D. J. O'Callaghan when he reads the morning paper story of "dog races" on the coursing field at Enid, O. T. For no iron enters the soul of the coursing enthusiasts so deeply as that which it sears by calling a course "a race."

From the manner in which old one-legged Dewey is winning races for Barney Schrieber we rather fancy that the genial German is heir to Caesar Young in the good graces of the officials of California racetracks. He can win stakes with goats. A better fellow could not get the money, either.

Gov. Davis has applied the combination lid, which was so popular with racetrack owners in St. Louis, to Hot Springs. This combination lid, which shuts down all sorts of gambling but the one they are interested in is very popular with the men who happen to own stock in such enterprises. Though they detest the old-fashioned solid lid, they like the new combination kind. As long as it helps them.

It is with pleasure I note that many of the rich young men of St. Louis are coming forward with handsome subscriptions to the prize list of the coming bench show. With particular gratification I see that Mr. Jimmie O'Neill has offered a handsome cup for the best bulldog in the show. Another cup for the best bull terrier, and one also for the best collie.

There are hundreds of young men in St. Louis who have a fancy for dogs and horses whom it would not hurt a particle to do as well by the coming dog show as Mr. O'Neill has done.

In all these things the young men of St. Louis are sadly delinquent. They do not come to the front for their city. They did not come forward when the Olympic games subscription was being taken up. They did not come forward when the speedway project was being talked of. The old business men did come forward at the horse show, but very little is owed the rich young men.

Let us forget these things, however. The bench show is coming and the delinquent can, in one check, get even with themselves for their shortcomings of days gone by.

Mr. O'Neill has set a good example in his liberality to the bench show. I trust he will not lack followers.

Baseball Babble

Bennett and Hoelskoetter made two-fifths of the Cardinals' hits, each closing the day with a batting percentage of .500.

Beckley made a sensational bare-hand stop of Nordyke's apparent single in the fourth.

First time up O'Brien tossed Bennett out. Hemphill was forced to extend himself in deep right to capture the Seattle Lad's second effort. In the sixth, he scored Hoelskoetter with a screeching double to right. In the eighth his hot liner, for which Wallace made a great try, went for his second single of the day.

Hoelskoetter gave four bases on balls.

Niles, who batted for Smith in the ninth, proved that he is the possessor of a keen eye by refusing to be deluded by Hoelskoetter and insisting that Arthur put 'em over.

Saturday's game will start at 3:15 o'clock at Sportsman's Park. Probable batteries, Pelty and Rickey for the Ravens; Thompson and Grady for the Cardinals.

ATHLETES OPPOSED TO POLICE ORDER

Restrictions Placed Upon Boys Playing Baseball on Lots Are Criticised.

The action of Acting Chief of Police Gillaspy in forbidding the playing of baseball by children in vacant lots came in for considerable unfavorable comment at the A. A. U. meeting Thursday night, and it was resolved to send a letter of protest to the Acting Chief, and to demand of the city playgrounds and parks in the downtown districts where they are most needed and where the children will have license and rein to gambol as they please.

It was also resolved to call upon the friends of athletics and the 20,000 members of the different athletic organizations to vote for the appropriation of $670,000 to be expended for public playgrounds and grounds which is one of the amendments to be voted upon when the Charter Amendments come up for consideration at the next election.

BENJ. F. FRENCH, Pelvic Specialist.

My method completely and permanently revives power after "cure-all" remedies and "quick cure" specialists fail even to benefit.

My scientific, systematic course of treatment for weak, nervous, broken-down youths and men, who have, through folly, dissipation and excesses, unfitted themselves for work and the enjoyment of life, is a system that has been tested many times over and proven entirely satisfactory. It is totally different from the many sickening pills and tablets and the stimulating, stomach-ruining drugs given by would-be specialists. My specific treatment for all the symptoms indicating Failing Strength is harmless, though so effective as to remove them immediately. It is constitutional; therefore, by purifying the blood, strengthening the nervous system, nourishing the tissues, the patient becomes strong and healthy, with all signs of the trouble forever gone. This treatment is to the human system what the sap is to the tree—it buds energy, ambition and confidence, that leaf into a prime, healthy, manly feeling of new life.

I CHARGE FOR CURES ONLY. I do not expect pay for my services unless I cure a patient sound and well, so that he will be entirely satisfied, and will never again have to be treated for the same trouble. SENATOR ALGER CRITICALLY ILL; MIND AFFECTED

Friends Fear Ex-Secretary of War Is on His Deathbed.

RESIGNATION REPORTED

Son Believed to Hold His Withdrawal From the Senate.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Gen. Russell A. Alger, former Secretary of War, and now Senator from Michigan, is so seriously ill at his home here that none but the immediate members of his family can see him. He is suffering from valvular disease of the heart. It is not expected that he will recover. Even Senator Borrows, his colleague, and Truman H. Newberry of Detroit, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, who are close political and personal friends of Senator Alger, are not permitted to see the sick man.

Gen. Alger is also in a weakened mental condition. The years of worry and brooding over what he considered his unjust treatment when he was forced out of President McKinley's Cabinet after the Spanish War, because of the embalmed beef scandal, have broken him. His family are guarding his condition carefully, and, while admitting that he is seriously ill, say he is gaining slowly.

He has alarming sinking spells, incident to the condition of his heart. Gen. Alger went to Atlantic City a short time ago and became very ill on the time when no one but Mrs. Alger was with him. As soon as he reached Atlantic City his sons and daughters were summoned. Col. Fred Alger came from Detroit and received the last instructions from the Senator as to the disposition of his great fortune.

It was thought then that the Senator might die, but he rallied and was brought to Washington. Since that time he has failed rapidly. He has been in his room for several days, constantly attended by a number of trained nurses.

His physicians will not comment on his condition, but his friends here say he may die at any moment or may live for some time. None of the Michigan delegation expects he will ever take his seat in the Senate again. A story was printed in Detroit that he had resigned and that his son, Col. Alger, has his resignation to present to Gov. Warner of Michigan at the proper time.

It was stated here that the resignation was held up until assurances could be obtained from the Governor that he would appoint a man friendly to the Alger faction in Michigan politics. Gen. Henry M. Duffield was the man mentioned as Alger's selection. Gov. Warner was asked over the telephone if he had been approached on this subject, and said he had not, but the general belief here is that Col. Alger has his father's resignation in his keeping.

Gen. Alger has taken but little part in the work of the Senate since he was appointed in 1902 to succeed the late Senator McMillan. He has been in feeble health most of the time. A few weeks ago he began to suffer severely, and now the attacks incident to the weakness of his heart come frequently.

There are several candidates in Michigan to succeed Senator Alger, whose term expires in 1907. Among them are William Alden Smith, the present Representative from the Grand Rapids District; Col. Frank Hecker of Detroit, who bought the transports for the Government in the war with Spain, by appointment of Gen. Alger, then Secretary of War; William C. McMillan, the son of the late Senator; Gen. Henry M. Duffield and a rich lumber man from Saginaw named Smith.

DIED OF DISEASE HE HAD MASTERED

Dr. Snodgras' Last Work Was to Write Paper on Pneumonia.

SOUGHT TO HELP POOR

Free Clinic for Consumptives and Free Anti-Toxin His Plans.

The parents of Dr. Charles Snodgras, Health Commissioner, who died Friday, will not be able to attend the funeral, to be held Sunday afternoon Both his father and mother are thought to be too old to attempt the journey from Independence, Mo. Mrs. Snodgras, the widow, and Dr. and Mrs. Claude Myles, brother-in-law and sister of the late Commissioner, will represent the immediate family.

The body was Saturday at the Alexander undertaking rooms and will lie in state there until Sunday noon. It will be taken Sunday to the Church of the Messiah, where Rev. John W. Day, assisted by Dean Carroll M. Davis of Christ Church Cathedral, will hold services at 2 p. m. The body will be taken to the City Crematory after the services, and the ashes will be sent to Marshall, Mo., the family home.

Discussion Saturday of a possible successor to Dr. Snodgras brought out the fact that Dr. Henry J. Scherck, chief physician of the City Dispensary, is considered a strong candidate. Dr. John Young Brown, superintnedent of the City Hospital, who once refused the Health Commissionership, is understood to be of the same mind now in regard to the latter position.

The Board of Public Improvements voted Saturday to attend the funeral of the Health Commissioner in a body. Flags were raised at half mast on the City Hall and on all city buildings and institutions provided with flags.

The list of pallbearers includes: Dr. John Young Brown, Superintendent of the City Hospital; Dr. O. H. Elbrecht, Superintendent of the Female Hospital; Dr. H. S. Atkins, Superintendent of the Insane Asylum; Dr. M. J. Dwyer, Superintendent of the Quarantine Station; H. E. Hart, Superintendent of the Poorhouse and C. W. Francis, Assistant Health Commissioner.

Sought Welfare of Poor.

Dr. Snodgras was 38 years old. He became chief of the hundreds of city employes in the Health Department through a political accident, but made a record for efficient administration and instituted important movements for the public health, some of which are still in the initial state.

He was appointed City Bacteriologist by Mayor Wells three years ago, and became Acting Health Commissioner more than a year ago, when Commissioner Simon was deposed by the Mayor. Following the trial of Dr. Simon he assumed the full duties of the office.

A free clinic for the treatment of tuberculosis was a favorite plan of Dr. Snodgras, and shortly before his fatal illness began he obtained the approval by the Board of Health of plans for such an institution. He also obtained a recommendation for a $1500 appropriation for the distribution of diphtheria anti-toxin among the poor.

Wrote of Pneumonia.

Thursday afternoon of last week Dr. Snodgras leaned back in his chair at the Health Commissioner's office in the Old City Hall filled with the satisfaction of a work well done. He had just put the finishing touches to a paper on the causes and treatment of pneumonia which he was to have read before a society of physicians.

Half an hour later he had a violent fever which was quickly followed by a chill.

No one knew better than he the symptoms of pneumonia. Leaving his office he walked across the hall to the City Dispensary. There he was examined. Reluctantly the doctors who were his subordinates told him what he already knew. He was in the first stages of death-dealing pneumonia.

Preparations were made to take him to his home at 5925 Theodosia avenue.

Sent Self to Hospital.

He knew that the more quickly a pneumonia patient is put to bed the better his chance of recovery, and he suggested that he be taken at once to the City Hospital.

There, on a bed in a private room, he began the long but losing battle with the disease which in theory he knew how to conquer.

For two days only one of his lungs was affected and the doctors under his direction devoted their energies to reducing the fever and preventing the spread of the congestion. At this time, though he was very weak, his supply of air was ample to keep him alive and to give him strength to fight the disease.

Slowly but surely the affected lung was rendered useless and despite all efforts to prevent it the disease spread until last Monday morning the doctors shook their heads and said:

"Double pneumonia; one chance in a thousand."

Dr. Snodgras was still conscious. In a voice that rose little above a whisper he told the physicians what to do.

Tuesday his condition was such that he was unable to take into his lungs enough air to keep him alive, and the last desperate expedient of using pure oxygen was resorted to.

For three days, through a large sponge-like apparatus, placed over his nose and mouth, the patient drew into his lungs 500 gallons of oxygen a day. Even at this stage of the disease he frequently rallied and gave directions to the physicians.

Occasionally he whispered words of hope and affection to his wife and sister who were in constant attendance at his bedside. Several times he suggested methods of treatment known only to himself. His profound knowledge of the disease was shown by the fact that when his directions were followed he always rallied, but he was too far gone for permanent help.

The crisis came early Friday morning. For a time it was thought that there was still hope for his recovery, but his strength was that of a dying man and at 9 o'clock it was announced that he could not recover.

FOUR MEN RESCUED.

Police and Firemen Bring Ladders for Prisoners.

Policemen and firemen rescued four men from being marooned all night in office buildings Friday night. The firemen took two men down a ladder at Seventh and Locust streets, while policemen supplied the ladder which permitted two others to tread terra firma after a long stay in a building at 419 North Fourth street.

E. H. Park of 5019 Ridge avenue and G. A. Neff of Alton, while at work in the Shallcross Printing and Stationery store, found they were locked in and all means of exit closed. They telephoned the police, who appeared with a ladder.

State Factory Inspector Jenks arrived in East St. Louis yesterday, and, accompanied by Truant Officer J. R. Ripley, is investigating the conditions concerning violations of the child-labor and compulsory-education laws. Local theaters, where children are said to be employed, are to be investigated, as well as the factories and packing plants in the city. The inspector is supposed to make these investigations each three months.

The funeral of John Stonewater, aged 39, who died yesterday of pneumonia at his home, 1243 Fisher avenue, will be held Sunday at 1 p. m. from the family residence to Mount Hope Cemetery. He leaves his wife and five children. Court Cahokia, No. 3165, Foresters, will have charge of the funeral.

Adrian Lee, aged 10, was given a judgment for $100 against James Dowling of Brooklyn, in the City Court yesterday. The suit was brought for injuries received by Lee when bitten by a dog belonging to Dowling.

Thomas Mason was given a judgment for $25 in the City Court yesterday against Mrs. Martha Guinan, for the value of the contents of a trunk which he alleged Mrs. Guinan refused to deliver to him. Mrs. Guinan said she was holding the trunk for balance due on a board bill.

The Canvassing Board went to Belleville yesterday and canvassed the returns of the municipal election held Tuesday. No mistakes were found and the result was officially declared to be the same as announced Tuesday night after the election.

FORCED DOOR TO GET BREAKFASTS

Youth Was Preparing Meal in Restaurant When Nabbed by Policeman.

Paul Schultz, 17 years old, who claims to have no home, but says his parents live in San Francisco, Cal., was arrested at 4 a. m. this morning by Patrolman Davidson in Pierce Matthew's restaurant, 206 North Jefferson avenue, helping himself to a good breakfast of dainty food.

For five mornings Schultz has been eating his breakfast in the restaurant, which he prepared himself on the gas stove, and the meal usually consisted of several eggs, breakfast food, ham sandwiches, pie, cake and milk.

He gained entrance to the restaurant by forcing the rear door which was held by a rope. He said that he had been eating there for five mornings, but that he took nothing of value except a "square deal." Nothing has been missing at the restaurant, but the door has been found opened for a week and the police were put on the case. Schultz was in the act of collecting his meal from the ice box with the aid of a match when Patrolman Davidson of the Manchester Avenue District placed him under arrest.

Schultz was arrested March 23 by Patrolman Edom at the instance of Charles Wiggins of the St. Charles Hotel for stealing $20. He worked at the hotel and when arrested a revolver was found on his person.

When arraigned in the Court of Criminal Correction on two charges, petit larceny and carrying concealed weapons, he pleaded guilty and said that he had been out of work for a long time and that he was going to buy something to eat with the money he had taken.

He was given four months for petit larceny and two months for carrying concealed weapons. Judge Moore, however, paroled him on good behavior and told him to report April 28 and give an account of himself.

$100,000 TO SPEND.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 7.—Ignacio Guerra is in San Francisco on a tour of America. He has just $100,000 to spend. With him are his wife, four beautiful daughters and a young son, his most valuable asset, he thinks.

Guerra is a miner and made his money quite suddenly. One day one of his little claims fairly oozed gold and silver. He did not have the capital to put up a plant and work out his findings, so he did the next best thing. He went out and found a purchaser for his claim. The lucky miner finally accepted $900,000 cash and an interest in the claim as his selling price. Guerra and his family will leave in a few days for the East.

COTTON.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Cotton opened 10 to 12 points higher on the cables and held steady with trade small. Week-end statistics were quite bullish, but weather shows some improvement. It will be largely a weather market from now on, as far as the new crops are concerned, and as viewed the situation in general 10¼ seems a fair price. Receipts are moderate and Southern spot markets are steady and next week's statistics bid fair to continue of a bullish average. The market closed steady.

GRAIN MARKETS ARE IRREGULAR

Wheat Is Barely Steady—Corn and Oats Strong and Higher.

Grain prices were irregular today, wheat showing a barely steady range, while corn and oats were strong and higher. Market sentiment in wheat is less bearish, but the continued favorable weather conditions make the bulls uncertain of their position.

Foreign markets were not a factor in today's speculation, Liverpool prices closing ⅛d lower in both wheat and corn. Berlin closed unchanged and Budapest ⅝c lower. Paris prices were steady.

Local receipts are light and shipments heavy and in the Northwest, Minneapolis and Duluth reported only 279 cars, against 398 last week, 153 last year and 109 two years ago. Minneapolis stocks show an increase of 350,000 bu for the past week.

The domestic demand for cash grain continues good, but export demands are not very urgent. The weather during the spring wheat seeding period now before us should be an influential factor.

Broomhall cables Liverpool wheat was steady at the opening today, ⅛d higher Shorts in May were nervous and covered some, owing to scarcity of contract. Toward the close, however, selling to realize was prompted by the liberal Australian shipments and favorable American crop advices. Corn was steady, at opening unchanged, being influenced by the strength in America yesterday. Later the market eased off, on the forecast of larger American shipments to Liverpool.

The Kentucky State crop report states that wheat compared with five year's average condition 98, early sown and upland very fine. March was 96, last April 90, but 86 in July.

Corn continues well bought in small offerings and receipts only about equal to the current demands. Country selling continues light and Western cash houses report much difficulty in securing good grain. Chicago houses report some big dealers short to exporters and experiencing difficulty in covering their contracts.

Oats continue in good demand for both export and domestic account.

STOCKS CLOSE LOWER ON BANK STATEMENT

Reserve Is Wiped Out, and Big Increase in Loans Recorded.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Prices opened unchanged to a fraction higher on Wall street today, with the trading moderately active. The metal stocks reflected good buying. Union Pacific was easy.

News over night was unimportant and should exert little influence either way. The money market continues the dominating influence in speculation. Foreign conditions remain unchanged. London sent a slightly higher price range. The London settlement begins on Monday.

The Week's Review.

Money has been the dominating influence in the week's speculation and many causes have been advanced to account for the abnormally high call rate that has prevailed. It is true that there is an abnormal demand for funds in all parts of the world from national causes, but that the present local rate is artificial goes without saying. The continued ease in the time money market, rates ranging between 5 and 5½ per cent, is the best indication that manipulation of call rates is being indulged in, but for what cause has not been made apparent. The theory that is receiving the most credence in the financial district is that certain powerful banking interests are not in harmony with a big speculation in stocks at the present time in the face of the strained position of the money market, and have taken the only means of checking a reckless class of speculators who are inclined to disregard all adverse factors in the situation. The fact that prices have held steady in the face of 30 per cent money strengthens this belief, for it indicates that no effort is being made to cause a disastrous break in prices—which could easily be precipitated by a money corner—but that the powers that be desire a less aggressive speculation until the money market shows signs of adjusting itself. That relief is in sight is indicated by the reduction of the Bank of England's discount rate during the week from 4 to 3½ per cent, which will permit of heavy gold imports in the near future, and shows that funds which have been held by foreign bankers owing to the Moroccan controversy will quickly enter the national channels of trade and commerce. The reduction in the Bank of England's discount rate is the most favorable development in the money market situation that could have occurred and is bound to play an important part in the general situation in the not distant future. Aside from the monetary situation general conditions remain favorable to higher values. Crop conditions remain ideal, industrial activity is great and railroad earnings enormous. The strike situation is less acute, and, all in all, the general outlook is bright.

The Bank Statement.

Prices eased off slightly all along the line after the opening, a moderate pressure against Union Pacific and Copper causing the traders to play for a slight reaction. Support in the general list was light and commission houses were practically out of the market as a factor. The bank statement showing the surplus reserve wiped out by a decrease of $7,691,950, an increase in loans of $7,205,000, and a loss in cash of nearly $8,000,000 increased the pressure of offerings and prices dropped further. The support was excellent, however, and the decline gradual. The closing was irregular, but on the whole fairly steady.

ST. LOUISAN MAY BECOME "BLACK POPE"

Father Meyer in Line of Succession to the Jesuit Chieftaincy.

NOW NEXT TO GENERAL

Father Martin, Present Head of Society, Is Ill Unto Death.

Rev. Father Rudolph L. Meyer, S. J., a native of St. Louis, a graduate of and later a teacher in St. Louis University, is a probable candidate for the office of [illegible]eneral of the Jesuit order, or "Black [illegible]e," in the event of the death of Rev. [illegible]her Louis Martin, now critically ill [illegible]ome.

[illegible]mbers of the faculty of St. Louis [illegible]versity and of the large affiliated [illegible]it community are watching with [illegible] solicitude the progress of Father [illegible]in's illness. The general of the or[illegible]uffered amputation of his right arm [illegible]r ago, to prevent death from a can[illegible] It is now stated that a cancer has [illegible]ared on his breast.

[illegible]icial verification of this statement received at the University Saturday [illegible] Rome.

[illegible]her Meyer is now head of the Eng[illegible] Assistancy in the Jesuit headquar[illegible] at Rome. As such he represents all [illegible]lish-speaking Jesuits. He is of equal [illegible] with the heads of the Italian, [illegible]nish, German and French Assistan[illegible] the other subdivisions of the so[illegible] of Jesus.

[illegible]ese five heads of the Assistancies next in power to the Black Pope. [illegible] constantly advise him concerning work of the society all over the [illegible]ld.

Elected by Majority.

[illegible]ather Meyer is considered one of [illegible] brainiest men in this, the most [illegible]werful religious order in the world. [illegible]is standing at Rome is enhanced by [illegible]e fact that the English and Ameri[illegible]n branches of the society which he [illegible]epresents have outstripped the Jesu[illegible]ts of other countries in recent progress.

On the death of the "Black Pope," a general congregation is called for the election of his successor. Three delegates from each of the 23 provinces meet in some European metropolis, and a bare majority of votes is sufficient for an election.

The general of the Society of Jesus is the most powerful figure in the Catholic Church under the Pope, with the possible exception of the Prefect of the Propaganda. Cardinal Gotti, known as the "Red Pope," holds the latter post.

The "Black Pope" rules over 15,000 Jesuits in all parts of the world. His rule is absolute, as the cardinal principle of the order is unquestioning obedience.

Older Than His Chief.

The Pope wears white always. The Prefect of the Propaganda wears red. The highest and the lowest of the Jesuits wear the same garb—a black cassock.

Father Meyer joined the Jesuit order soon after his graduation from St. Louis University, and was ordained a priest in 1874. Eight years later his reputation as a worker and thinker resulted in his being chosen a delegate to the congregation held at Mauressa, Spain, at which Father Martin was elected. Father Martin recognized his ability, and immediately appointed him head of the English Assistancy. Since that time Father Meyer has been very successful as an administrator.

Father Meyer is 65 years of age, being five years older than the present "Black Pope."

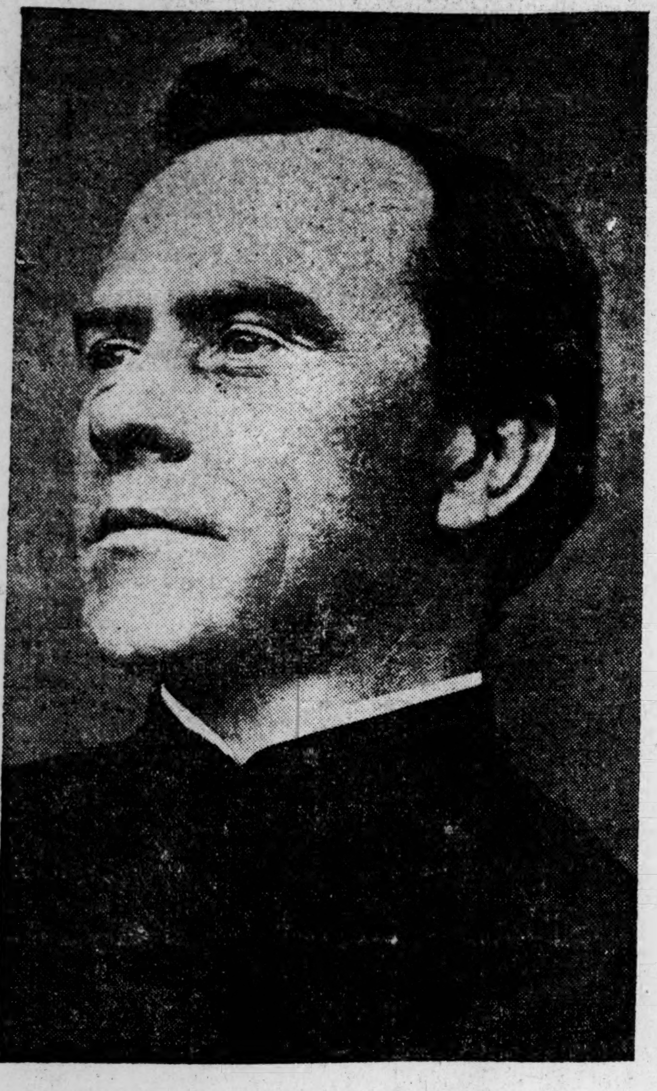
NAGOLD, South Germany, April 7.—The burial of 50 bodies of those who perished April 5 by the collapse of the Hotel Zum Hirschen (Stag Hotel), took place today by twos and threes, so that the three pastors who came from neighboring villages might read the services by the graveside at each interment.

There is scarcely a family in the village which has not lost a member.

THIS ST. LOUIS PRIEST MAY BECOME HEAD OF THE JESUITS



REV. FR. RUDOLPH L. MEYER.

THIS KANSAN NO FRIEND TO STORK

Prof. F. W. Blackmar Would Restrict Births Among the Unfit.

Prof. F. W. Blackmar of the chair of sociology of the Kansas University, believes that the birth rate should be restricted among weak, the unfit by heredity, the degenerate and other elements of society among whom the bearing of children tends to weaken the human race. But the professor admits that he doesn't see clearly how this reform is to be brought about.

Prof. Blackmar was one of the speakers before the St. Louis School of Philosophy at a meeting at the Wednesday Club Friday. The speaker said that the most feasible plan, he believed, was by the restriction of marriages.

"We are steeped in tradition and convention," the speaker said, "and have so much hypocrisy in our civilization that it is difficult to apply scentific methods. But education, legislation and radical social selection, to supplement nature, may relieve the situation.

"If left to herself nature eliminates the weak and the unfit, but science dominates civilization, and civilization must submit to the demands of science.

"We must either cease trying to reclaim the weak, or make a better selection of stock. If we could eliminate degeneracy, crime, pauperism and poverty, we must see to the stock of the people."

Other speakers at the meeting were Prof. A. O. Lovejoy, Rabbi Sale and Walter L. Sheldon.

CUPID WORKED INSIDE PRISON

Life-Term Man Won Heart of Woman Serving Ten Years for Murder.

COULD MEET EACH MONTH

Man Was Pardoned Last Christmas and Now Seeks Pardon for Woman.

George A. Long of Kansas City, Kan., formerly a convict in the Missouri Penitentiary, where he served a term for murder, has begun efforts to procure the pardon of Mrs. Ida Thornton, whom he met and wooed within the prison walls. The woman is serving a 10-year sentence for the murder of her husband in Jasper County in 1900.

Long, who was granted a Christmas pardon in 1905, has written Gov. Folk from 511 Split Log avenue, Kansas City, Kan., declaring his love for Mrs. Thornton, and asking that she be pardoned. He says in the letter that if the pardon is granted he will immediately marry Mrs. Thornton and will provide her with a good home and will see that she is well taken care of.

Long was in prison when Mrs. Thornton was taken there in 1900. He had begun serving a life sentence in 1895 for murder. Shortly after she reached the Penitentiary Long saw her in the Deputy Warden's office. He was attracted by the rather youthful, blue-eyed woman, and though at that time he did not know her, he managed to learn her name.

Men in the Penitentiary are permitted to meet and talk with women they may know once a month. After seeing Mrs. Thornton Long asked to be permitted to talk with her. His request was granted, and from that time on Long saw her once each month until Gov. Folk pardoned him in December.

Courted Her in Prison.

In the monthly visits he learned to love the woman, and he was attractive to her. After his pardon he immediately began efforts to obtain her release, and he has been untiring in his devotion to her. Each week she receives a letter from him, and each week she writes to him. She is permitted to write only one letter a week, and Long gets that one.

When the love affair between the two was explained to Gov. Folk he indicated that there is little probability that he will pardon the woman. He granted Long's pardon last Christmas for the reason that he was the oldest man in point of time served in the Penitentiary, who had a good record.

Long entered the prison in May, 1895, sentenced from Henry County, to life imprisonment for murder. He was released Christmas Day.

Mrs. Thornton reached the prison in 1900, sentenced to serve 10 years for the murder of her husband. With her came George Ray, a young man, who had lived at her home in Jasper County. He was also sentenced to serve 10 years for the same crime. Ray admitted in court that he was the man who had killed Thornton, but declared he had committed the crime at the instigation of Mrs. Thornton. Aside from Ray's statement there was corroborating evidence of Mrs. Thornton's guilt.

COURT MAY LIFT LID FROM STATE

Point Raised That Sunday Law Applies Only to St. Louis and Kansas City.

If the contention of St. Joseph "lid-lifters" is sustained by the Kansas City Court of Appeals, St. Louis and Kansas City will soon be the only cities in Missouri in which the State law governing Sunday closing can be enforced.

Judge Burnes of the Buchanan County Circuit Court has sustained a contention of saloon men that cities of the second class have the sole right to regulate dramshops, and that the State law under which the Governor is acting applies only to St. Louis and Kansas City.

St. Joseph has a city ordinance which provides that "it shall be unlawful for any saloon keeper to keep his place open for business between the hours of 9:30 a. m. and 12:30 p. m. on Sunday." As no mention is made of the other hours of the day, the saloon men decided that they had the right to keep open during the hours not prohibited by the ordinance.

The validity of this ordinance is now before the Kansas City Court of Appeals on a test case appealed from St. Joseph, and Judge Burnes advised that the cases brought before him be postponed until the decision of the Court of Appeals is handed down.

He told the attorney for the State if the trials were forced at this time he would be compelled to instruct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty, as he believed that the point raised by the defense was well taken.

THIEF WAS AFTER ROLLS, NOT ROSES

Misunderstanding of Telephone Message Causes Second Trip for Policeman.

John Quinton, a grocer at 2602 Tennessee avenue, reported to Night Chief of Police Wilson early this morning that he caught a thief stealing rolls from his breadbox.

"He's a lamplighter," said Quinton. "I chased him and in running he dropped his light extinguisher."

Chief Wilson notified the Magnolia Avenue District and an officer was sent to see Quinton.

"There's nothing to the complaint," said the officer over the telephone later in making his report to the office. "This man ain't got no roses."

"Who said anything about roses?" asked the Sergeant, in surprise.

"Didn't you say somebody stole roses from this man Quinton?"

"I said rolls."

"O!" And the policeman went back to see Quinton and get a report of the robbery.

ATTEMPT MADE TO WRECK TRAIN

Iron Wedged Into Switch on Wabash in Edwardsville Causes Bumping.

Pieces of iron tightly wedged into a switch frog on the Wabash Railroad at Edwardsville, nearly caused a wreck at 9:30 p. m., Friday. The fact that the train was running slowly through the town is all that saved it from being ditched.

An examination of the obstruction by the train crew satisfied the men that the switch had been deliberately tampered with. On either side of the track at that point is a steep embankment, and a wreck could not have failed to have resulted seriously.

The train was in charge of Conductor Walmsley and Engineer Arrowsmith, and runs on the Toledo cut-off. It was well filled with passengers who were considerably excited at the unusual bumping and jarring of the coaches.

COMES TO LIFE IN HIS SHROUD

Wealthy Kentucky Farmer Upsets His Own Funeral Arrangements.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 7.—Hardin Butler, a wealthy farmer of Hinesdale, Hart County, came within an ace of being buried alive. He was supposed to have died of heart failure. Physicians were called in and pronounced Butler dead. He was dressed for burial and the funeral was to have taken place Friday afternoon. The members of the family were gathered about the bedside.

Miss Alice Butler, his daughter, became hysterical as the undertaker and his assistants picked up the body to place it in the coffin. As if awakened by her screams, the supposed dead man opened his eyes.

"What is all this racket about?" was his first utterance. "Whose coffin is that? Who is dead?" He sank back unconscious, but in a few hours was revived and today is sitting up shaking hands with himself.

POLICE CASES GO OVER.

Cases pending in the courts of Judge Taylor and Judge Sale in which temporary writs of prohibition have been issued restraining the Board of Police Commissioners from trying them and in which the board has been ordered to show cause Saturday morning, were continued to next Friday by consent of counsel.

The case in Judge Sale's court is that of Patrolman Harry Traffert. In Judge Taylor's court the cases of Patrolmen Thomas Dorris, George Burris and Henry Meyer are pending.

SHOT IN QUARREL AFTER DICE GAME

Millering Admits He Wounded Saloon Keeper, but Pleads Self-Defense.

James Powers, aged 35, a saloon keeper of 3801 Easton avenue, was shot and dangerously wounded in front of his saloon at 5 a. m. today, by Herman Millering, 40 years old, a bricklayer of 3628 Easton avenue. Powers was taken to the City Hospital, where the bullet has not been found by the physicians. Millering was arrested by the police and locked up in the Dayton Street Station. He admits the shooting, but asserts that he did it in self-defense.

The men tell conflicting stories of the trouble that led to the shooting. They agree that the fight started over a dice game, but from this starting point the stories are widely divergent.

Millering told the police that early this morning he went into the saloon of Collett & Luther, 3751 Cass avenue, and engaged in a game of poker dice for the drinks. Powers, whose saloon is near by, was in the saloon and engaged in the game.

When the game was finished a dispute arose between Powers and Millering as to which had lost. An argument followed and the bartender ordered them out of the saloon. When Millering went out on the sidewalk, he says Powers followed him, knocked him down and while he was in a dazed condition took $50 out of his pocket.

Millering then went home, he says, and got his pistol. He was returning to the scene of the fight, and as he passed Powers' saloon Powers again attacked him, knocking him down and kicking him. When Powers made a motion as if to draw a weapon, Millering says he drew his pistol and fired. The ball entered Powers' left cheek and is imbedded somewhere in his face or head.

Powers tells a different story. He says that after the trouble at Collett & Luther's saloon he returned to his own place of business. While he was standing in his door Millering came along and without a word shot him in the face.

When Powers, who was also arrested, was searched, $90 was found in his pockets, and this money is being held as evidence by the police at the Dayton Street Station.

While Powers was strapped to a cot in the hospital where he is a prisoner, his father, John Powers, 3917 Lucky street, called to see him. When he saw his son with his head bandaged and strapped to a cot, the elder Powers began to abuse the hospital attendants and created such a scene that he was ejected from the building. Upon his promise to keep quiet he was permitted to return and stay a while in the ward.

The hospital physicians are probing for the bullet, but have not succeeded in finding it. The ball partially paralyzed Powers' tongue and lips and he speaks with difficulty.

THREE DROWN IN BOAT'S CAPSIZE

Woman Rocks Launch and Meets Death With Two Male Companions.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Io., April 7.—Shortly after midnight last night while George McDonald, Samuel Callahan, Thomas Delaney and Mrs. Copp were taking a ride in a gasoline launch on the Cedar River, Mrs. Copp began rocking the boat and it suddenly capsized. Delaney swam ashore to summon help, but before he returned the other three drowned. One body has been recovered.

An increase of 38,840,916 passengers carried by the United Railways Co. is shown in the report filed by Treasurer Adkins with the City Register. A decrease of 684,290 in the number of trips made is shown by comparison with the figures of last year.

YOUTH KILLED BY COMRADE'S SHOT

William Noonan, Shooting at Target, Causes Death of August Taylor.

August Taylor of 6438 Suburban avenue, 16 years old, was shot and instantly killed by William Noonan of 6416 Etzel avenue, while the two were testing their marksmanship in St. Louis County, a mile from their homes. The rifle young Noonan held was accidentally discharged as Taylor was tacking a slip of paper, to be used as a target, on a tree five yards away. The bullet entered August Taylor's heart.

August, William and Archie Redner of 6446 Suburban avenue went out together Friday afternoon to a spot near Roth's Grove, west of Delmar Garden. Noonan's rifle was to furnish the amusement for the afternoon. For some time the youths shot at various objects.

It was finally suggested by Archie that a bull's-eye be made on a blank sheet of paper and tacked to a tree. August was carrying out this suggestion when William, in picking up the rifle from the ground, accidentally discharged it.

William was taken to Clayton, but released after telling the authorities how the tragedy occurred.

Mrs. Taylor, weeping beside the casket in her home, said Saturday that August had just attained the age when he was the greatest comfort, pleasure and help to her; but she did not express resentment toward the youth who had accidentally slain him.

August was one of seven children. His father, Lorenzo D. Taylor, is an express driver. The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon.

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME
as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.
Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.
Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.
